POVERTY PLEA AT REVIVAL

One of those who crowded into Tremont Temple to-day at the noon Chapman-Alexander meeting was a policeman, who, when he had heard the gospel singing, handed Charles M. Alexander $2.

"I have had $2 worth—now the money as best you can."

The pathetic condition of a family in the South End was brought to the attention of the large audience through the Salvation Army. In the family is a man of forty, incurably ill. He lives with his aged father, who cannot work because he recently fell and broke his collar bone.

The aged mother is ailed. The man's sister, a widow, with two children, is the sole support of the entire family. She gets work two or three days a week while the children are cared for by their ailed grandmother. The attention of the Salvation Army has been directed to the and case and this noble body of workers are doing what they can for the sufferers.

The Rev. Herbert Johnson presided at today's meeting because the Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad is ill with bronchitis.

Colored Boy Leads Song.

A feature of the song service conducted by Mr. Alexander before Dr. Chapman began his sermon, was the singing of Clifton B. Randolph, a little colored boy who sat in the balcony with his father. The boy's home is No. 61 Jerome street, West Medford. He sang "He Will Hold Me Fast," one of the new hymns taught the congregation by Mr. Alexander.

Another appreciated feature of the singing was that of Mrs. Gillespie, of Stamford, Conn., who rendered very effectively the old hymn, "I Love to Tell the Story."

It was announced that all day to-morrow, in Gilbert Hall, all contributable articles that may be contributed for the poor of the city will be received. Food, clothing, coal, wood and money will be accepted.

Dr. Chapman, it was announced, would speak to-morrow at the dedication of the new building of the Salvation Army in this city. Mrs. Eva Booth, the national commander, is to speak at the same meeting.

Prayers were asked in a letter read by Dr. Chapman from a deaf and dumb girl for a brother who is addicted to drink.

"Quiet Hour" Service.

Nearly 2,000 people, mostly women, crowded the First Baptist Church, Cambridge, at the "quiet hour" service held there, beginning at 10 o'clock to-day, by the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman.

Previous to opening the principal meeting, Dr. Chapman preached to an overflow meeting of 800 in one of the adjoining rooms. During the services many eyes were filled with tears, and frequently the sobbing was audible in all parts of the church.

Dr. Chapman was assisted by the Rev. Charles W. Alexander, who led the singing, Rev. Dr. J. Campbell, rector of the church, presided. Prayers were also offered by the Rev. Arthur McKenzie, of the Shepard Memorial Church, Cambridge, and the Rev. Dr. Knowles of Lexington.

The congregational singing was led by Dr. Lincoln Newcomb, organist of the church, and the Rev. Dr. Simpson, of the Third Presbyterian Church of Cambridge. Mr. Chapman took for the text of his sermon, "Love Never Faileth," from Isiah, chapter 38, 17th verse.

DENY REPORT OF TIDAL SEA

GALVESTON, Tex., Feb. 11.—At the office of the Mexican Cable Company today it was said that no report of a tidal wave at Liniot, Costa Rica, had been received, and the rumor of the disaster is discredited.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN KELLEHER MYSTERY STIR POLICE ACTIVITY

Two startling developments in the Mary Kelleher poison mystery to-day awoke District Attorney John J. Higgins of Middlesex County, the State police, the police of Cambridge and Somerville to the greatest activity.

The report from Professor William H. Whitney of the Harvard Medical School, who has been examining the viscera taken from the bodies of Willie, Annie and Mary Kelleher, the latter a mere child, it is believed, proves that a deliberate and systematic plot existed which resulted in the deaths by poisoning of six members of the family of Mrs. Mary Kelleher.

The second discovery made to-day is that a boarder, a man, who had spent a long time in the family of Mrs. Kelleher, will be able to tell the prosecuting officials of Middlesex County a story that will throw a flood of light on the hitherto black mystery.

Hunt Now for Boarder.

This man, about two weeks ago, was examined by the Somerville police. At that time, even, his story was believed to be important, but to-day it develops that he knew much more than he told the police at that time and which will completely solve the mystery as to how the different members of the Kelleher family were arsenically poisoned by their deaths for the life insurance policies which each one held.

The police are to-day seeking this man. They will be able to lay their hands on him in a short time and they are confident that with his testimony one of the most remarkable series of crimes of modern times will have been disclosed.

Detail Policeman.

This new and startling evidence has been secured the detailing to-day of State Policeman Arthur E. Keating to work on the case in Somerville is taken as one proof.

District-Attorney John J. Higgins of Middlesex County, in charge of the government's prosecutions, sent State Police man Keating to Somerville to devote an exclusive attention to work on the case. At the same time District Attorney Higgins summoned Chief Inspector Patrick Harley of Somerville and Lieutenant Eugene Carter and Inspector Thomas Damery of the Somerville police force to Cambridge.

There a long and closely guarded conference was held in the office of the District Attorney. After it was over District Attorney Higgins admitted that the secret talk between him and the officers had to do with the Kelleher case.

The District Attorney was unusually secretive concerning the matters discussed. He admitted that the Kelleher case was the sole subject of discussion, but refrained from saying anything further than that the case was reviewed.

In view of the fact that enough arsenic was found in the viscera of twelve-year-old Catherine Kelleher, daughter of Mrs. Mary Kelleher, now confined in the East Cambridge jail on a charge of arson, to have caused the deaths of many strong men, it is believed that Professor William F. Whitney of the Harvard Medical School has made additional startling discoveries.

Found Arsenic in Bodies.

More than two weeks ago the bodies of Willie, Annie and Mary Kelleher, the latter a mere baby girl, were exhumed from their graves in St. Paul's Cemetery in Arlington. Three weeks previous to this the body of Catherine had been taken from the grave and it was found that arsenic had been administered to her.

To-day's astounding revelations lead to the strong belief that Professor Whitney in his report states that he found arsenic in the viscera of the bodies of the other three members of the family who all died under symptoms pointing to death by poisoning.

Evidence secured by Lieutenant Carter and Inspector Damery of the Somerville police since Professor Whitney's preliminary report showed that Catherine Kelleher had not died by poisoning proves that one person, a suspect in the case, had opportunity to have given each member of the Kelleher family poison while they were sick.

Close Watch on Suspect.

This suspect can be apprehended at once. The police know where the suspect is, and they deem now that they have a sufficiently strong and conclusive case to present it to the grand jury next month and demand an indictment.

The detailing of Officer Keating to work on the case in Cambridge is taken to prove that new and important evidence has been secured and that he is securing cumulative evidence for the district attorney.

The seal displayed to-day by the different officials is the strongest proof that most important facts have been learned and that the solution of the mystery is but the work of a short time.

The police of Somerville and Cambridge have been working hard on the case ever since Dr. M. W. White of Somerville, who had treated five members of the family while sick, declared that he thought that their symptoms suggested poisoning.

Each of the members of the family, who were all buried in St. Paul's cemetery in Arlington, had a life insurance policy, and that Mrs. Mary Kelleher, the mother of the family and now in jail, drew from $2,500 to $4,000 in all.

Where this money has been placed is a mystery.

CAPTAIN CHARLES H. KIMBALL DEAD

Captain Charles H. Kimball of the fishing schooner Dorothy B. Hamlin died at the Beverly Hospital, failing to rally from the shock of a surgical operation for a stomach trouble. He was fifty-three years old and lived at No. 25 Bow street, Beverly. He is survived by a widow.

Captain Kimball was one of the best-known fishermen who ever berthed a vessel at T wharf in Boston. He had been sailing out of this port after fish for thirty-five years.

INSANE MAN FLEES; POLICE ON TRAIL

TAUNTON, Feb. 10.—Abraham Shoesmith, thirty-five years of age, an inmate of the Taunton Insane Hospital, escaped during the night. The police of this city and all surrounding cities and towns were notified to-day when Shoesmith was discovered missing. He was committed to the insane hospital from Fall River.

BOY DEAD CAUGHT IN ELEVATOR

Tiffie riding on a freight elevator in the business block at No. 35 Haverhill street, near Haymarket square, this noon, Irvin Katz, ten years, of No. 12 Morton street, was crushed to death between the first and the second floor.

The elevator entrance opens on the street and the little fellow was evidently operating it for pleasure, though none saw him there until D. L. Sullivan, who is employed by J. B. Jutkins, a carriage dealer, heard his screams.

A call was sent in to the Relief Station and to Ladder Company No. 1, but he was released by Frank W. Tucker before the firemen arrived to assist. It was seen that he was dead, and the body was removed in the ambulance to the hospital morgue.

FEAR LINER LOST IN GALE OFF COAST

A big steamer, sighted off Martha's Vineyard in great distress, is believed to have gone down in the storm that is sweeping the Atlantic Coast.

The identity of the steamship is not known. If she foundered, as is believed in shipping circles, all on board must have perished.

The wireless operators at Siasconset and Wood's Hole were told of the distressed vessel and have made efforts to get information from her in vain. This fact confirms the belief that the ship has been lost.

The report of the imperilled vessel was made in New York yesterday by the captain of the Victoria De Larrinaga. The captain reported that he sighted the unknown ship at 8 o'clock on Monday morning.

The distressed steamer, the captain said, had one black funnel. This funnel bore the letter "S."

The ship was in a bad way. The sea was lashed into a fury by a fifty-mile gale and great waves were sweeping the ship from stem to stern.

The unknown ship turned and started toward the Victoria as though to ask for help. Later turned about and headed northward.

The single funnel bearing the letter "S" would answer the description of either the Sutherland or the Iverness, both vessels being overdue in Boston. The Sutherland is three days overdue from Calcutta and Colombo.

The wireless operator at Vineyard Haven, in a message to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day, said that no trace of the distressed ship had been found in his vicinity.

"A heavy south-southeast gale is blowing," the operator reported, "and there is a very thick fog."

BOSTON LAWYER KILLED IN SOUTH

Dispatches to-day from Lynchburg, Virginia, announce the accidental death last night on the Southern Railway of Waldron Bates, a lawyer, with offices at No. 50 State street, and residing with his brother, Samuel W., at the Hotel Colonial, No. 282 Commonwealth avenue.

Mr. Bates fell under a fast train at Monroe, a divisional point near Lynchburg and was instantly killed. His body was badly mutilated.

Mr. Bates left here Monday night for Aiken, South Carolina, where he intended making an extended sojourn for the benefit of his health. His brother was apprised this afternoon of his death, but no particulars were given.

MALLEY TALKS ON REGISTRATION LAW

Representative Malley of Boston spoke before the Committee on Election Laws at the State House to-day in behalf of his bill providing that a Boston voter whose name has been left off the list through error may have a hearing by the Election Commissioners to prove he is qualified to register.

RECORD WIND WORKS HAVOC

People Blown About Streets By 82-Mile-An-Hour Gale, That Drove Rain In Sheets.

The record of the biggest wind that ever hit Boston was tied today when the city was swept by a gale that reached eighty-two miles an hour in the Blue Hills.

In the streets of the city much havoc was wrought with pedestrians who essayed to make their way under umbrellas which they raised in vain to keep them sheltered from the violent gusts of rain that whipped them from various quarters.

Umbrellas were snapped out. In many instances women were whisked, like bundles of straw, from their feet and hurled into the doorways of buildings.

Men's hats filled the air. One of the worst corners in the city was at Park and Tremont streets. A woman with an umbrella tried to get around the corner, only to get in the grasp of the terrific wind. Her umbrella turned the wrong side out, her clothing caught the wind and she herself was landed against a railing.

The same violent conditions obtained at the Scollay corner. It was almost impossible to maintain a standing position and found that corner. Tremont street shoppers found it hard traveling, with the wind blowing a gale. Hats and umbrellas were blown in all directions, and the Lafayette mail, directly across, resembled a dumping ground for umbrellas which were destroyed. The rain added to the discomfort of pedestrians, and scores of them were drenched before they reached their destination.

Revivalists Caught in Storm.

Thousands going home from the noon Chapman-Alexander meeting at Tremont Temple caught the fury of the gale. The rain was swept into their faces and no shelter except a roof could keep it off.

Scores of persons on Broadway, South Boston, were thrown into a state of excitement at 12:30 to-day by the gale. Coleman McDonough, twenty years old, of No. 42 Silver street, in attempting to secure his hat, ran in front of an inward bound Broadway Extension car and was knocked down and dragged a distance of thirty feet.

He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to the office of Dr. Walter Cavanaugh on Broadway, where it was found that he was suffering from numerous cuts on the head and multiple injuries to the body. He was later taken to his home.

82-Mile Gale at Blue Hill.

In the streets of Boston it was estimated that the wind attained a velocity of forty-miles an hour. In the Blue Hills the eighty-two-mile velocity was only equalled once, so far as the records show. That was on January 1, 1905.

On the sea coast the gale tore along at a fearful speed. The waves rolled mountain high and vessels bugged the Boston Harbor or far away from the shore.

In the Dorchester section the wind reached the highest velocity known. It was estimated that it must have reached eighty-five miles an hour as it swept with cyclonic force through the Neponset Valley.

The few small craft anchored in Dorchester Bay were dragged from their anchors and driven out to sea.

Had Fury of Tornado.

In the Blue Hill Reservation the tempest did great damage among the trees. Limbs were torn from many of the largest, and a great many of the smaller trees were literally stripped of their foliage.

The debris of the storm filled the air much earlier and more rapidly in the neighborhood, where the people believed that they were in the heart of a great tornado.

Carpenters at work on Draper street in Dorchester were compelled to leave their work. The staging upon which they stood leaped about like a boat on the stormy waters of the nearby bay. The new building, it was said, it was thought that some of them would fall to the ground in a crash.

A tremendous sea rolled up at city Point. A big raft at the water's edge was torn to pieces. The huge waves rolled over the Strandway and the stone wall at Marine Park.

On Second street, South Boston, blinds and parts of the roofing were blown from many of the residences.

A tree, many of the oldest residents of South Boston declared that it was the highest wind that they ever experienced. Trees and electric light poles gyrated in the air, and residents were frightened lest they crash down on their houses.

SHOE GIRLS WIN FIGHT

Eighteen of the girl buttonhole workers in the stitching room of the Millans shoe factory on Oxford street, Lynn, to-day won out in their contention that the firm reinstate their foreladv, Mrs. Nellie M. Horne, who had been discharged early in the day.

Mrs. Horne is president of the Lynn Buttonhole Operators' Union, and never realized the number of friends she had among her girls. The firm claimed she was using her time to collect dues from the girl members of the union during working hours and discharged her. The girls were informed of the action and notified the firm they, too, would go out with the foreladv. Mrs. Horne was then reinstated.

STRAP MUZZLE GETS DOG OWNER FINER

Because he persisted in using a strap muzzle on his dog, William A. Sweatt of No. 27 Sharon avenue, Auburndale, was fined $5 to-day in the Newton Police Court by Judge Kennedy. He pleaded not guilty but paid the fine. On December 11 last Sweatt was fined $5 because he had used a strap muzzle on a dog. The animal bit a little girl twice, mauled as he was, and sometimes enacted at the headquarters of both parties in the filing of nomination papers. Mr. Linehan said that every election official should be under bond, as the will of the people is frequently defeated through the manipulation of ward committees. There was no opposition.

The bride was attended by Miss Elizabeth Lynch, while the best man was Inspector Thomas F. Gleaney of Roxbury.

URGES GUARDS FOR FORESTS

The value of the output of forestry lands in Massachusetts is $.500,000 annually, and the possible value of this output might be increased to $15,000,000 by reforestation, according to a statement made to-day by State Forester F. W. Rane to the Legislative Committee on Agriculture.

He said of the 3,321,000 acres of land in the State, 50 per cent, or 2,588,000 acres, consists of woodland. He urged upon the Legislature the necessity of protecting timber from fires and the need for increasing the staff of the forests, as recommended by Governor Draper in his inaugural, and by the Forestry England conference on uniform lines for reforestation. Professor Rane said there were 1,370 forest fires in Massachusetts last year, and $5,445 was does reported that 530 trees set by locomotives and 337 were from unknown causes.

SEEKS TO ABOLISH WARD COMMITTEES

Ex-Senator Frank J. Linehan of South Boston appeared in favor of his bill to do away with ward committees and to have city committees of both parties consist of one member from each ward. He said that the chairmen of the ward committees have to do all the work, and this bill would prevent the disgraceful scenes which are now sometimes enacted at the headquarters of both parties in the filing of nomination papers. Mr. Linehan said that every election official should be under bond, as the will of the people is frequently defeated through the manipulation of ward committees. There was no opposition.

TWO RECORD WARSHIPS IN NAVAL BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—Two battleships of 26,000 tons each, to be the largest warships of any navy of the world, are provided for in the naval appropriation bill which was reported to the Senate to-day by Senator Hale.

The Senate committee reported increases in the various appropriations for the navy, amounting to $1,058,437.52 over the sums allowed by the House, making the total proposed naval appropriations for the next fiscal year $136,825,190.05.

It is the judgment of the Senate committee, as it was of the House, that the marines should be restored to their old duties on board the ships.

This makes a direct issue with the President, who recently issued an order, the effect of which would be to make the marine corps a land force, going to sea only when emergency should demand.

A commission is created to consist of three senators, three representatives, three retired admirals and three civilians to investigate and report to congress what changes are necessary and desirable in the naval system.

The Secretary of the Navy is directed to investigate and report by it suitable board the question of the establishment of a naval base, including navy yard and repair station, on the coast of California south of San Francisco, and to submit an estimate of cost.

The bill creates the office of vice admiral in the retired list, to be filled by the benefit of Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans. Three all-surface boats are provided for.

She will reach the mouth at 10 p. m. The Birmingham is awaiting her arrival at the mouth. The cruiser reported no damage done by the storm.

MOTHERS DEFEAT SCHOOL BOARD CUT

HAVERHILL, Feb. 10.—Several hundred determined mothers, by starting a petition to the State Board of Education, baffled the attempt of the Haverhill School Board to reduce the city expense by a sweeping cut in the teaching force of the public schools. The board has voted to rescind its order directing the combining of several of the graded schools, which would have called for the dismissal of eight teachers.

Superintendent George E. Gay, at the time the order was given, was asked to make a list of teachers believed incompetent and when this list was returned to the school board, it is said, it bore the names of some of the best teachers in the schools. Mr. Gay explained that the names were put on the list so as to favor the local teachers who, if discharged, would arouse public sentiment.

The action of the mothers in making a protest held up the board's action and as the City Council granted no additional appropriation, the schools will not be molested.

NEAR DEATH BY GAS IN LODGING HOUSE

Frank Bryant, aged thirty-five years, was found unconscious from gas escaping from the jet in his room in the lodging house at No. 5 Hanson street, South End, at 10 o'clock to-day. He was taken to the City Hospital, where it was said this afternoon that he was still unconscious, but that he had fair chances to recover.

It is not known whether he turned on the gas with suicidal intent, or whether it was an accident.

FEAR MISSING BOY FOUL PLAY VICTIM

Arthur Larkin, nineteen years of age, living at No. 96 Alexander street, Dorchester, has been missing from his home since Sunday night, and his mother is distracted with grief. She believes her son has met with foul play.

Young Larkin, who is a shoe worker at the factory of Alden, Walker & Wyld, Weymouth, went to visit a young lady to whom he is engaged to be married, at No. 8 Warren avenue. He left her home at 10:30 Sunday evening to go home and took the train, intending to get off at Bird station. He never reached home, and no clew to his whereabouts can be ascertained, either by the police or his family. He had considerable money with him.

WAITRESS IS BRIDE OF TECH STUDENT IN RESTAURANT ROMANCE

Photograph by Will Armstrong.

Agnes R. Morris, Back Bay waitress who is now wife of Arthur F. Conant, 'Tech' graduate.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Conant, are to-day being followed to New York by scores of telegrams congratulating them upon their marriage. Conant was one of the most popular of last year's graduating class from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Miss Agnes R. Morris, his bride, was for three years a most attractive waitress at the Copley Cafe in Clarendon street.

"They'll be happy. They are completely devoted to each other," the waitresses at the Copley Cafe are to-day telling their friends and customers in talking about the pretty little romance which blossomed out of the humdrum of life in a restaurant.

Conant and Miss Morris were married last Saturday at the home of the bride in Rutland, Vt., after a most agreeable dance and courtship lasting three years, which began in 1906 just after the young man was is now an electrical engineer in Portland, Me., was graduated from Harvard and had entered Tech.

The pretty black-eyed, black-haired Vermont girl had just entered the restaurant as a waitress. At once she became popular with scores of Tech students, many of them living at the Club House, No. 262 Newbury street, where Conant resided during his time at the institute.

Three meals a day, never failing, were taken by Conant at the restaurant. Soon he and the pretty waitress became more than ordinary acquaintances, for she was refined and reserved and appealed to him. Finally, they began to go out together, and in 1907 they became engaged.

But the Tech students didn't know this nor the other waitresses at the Copley Cafe, not they. Many a gallant student wondered why he could not impress the pretty girl until he learned to use Conant's head her away from the restaurant.

Last June young Conant, who comes from a good family in Pittsfield, N. H., was graduated, but the couple preferred to wait until the engineer should be self-supporting. He went to Portland. She continued her duties at the restaurant.

Good fortune came Conant's way. He was soon doing a good business. Last week Miss Morris said she would be a widow, with whom both were infatuated, looked on from a window of her home.

Both had wood Mrs. Adams for several months and each had made threats against the other. Both were known as dangerous men.

Finally a truce was arranged, each agreeing not to meet the other socially, while both were to pay court to Mrs. Adams. The truce ended and Quirk went to Mrs. Adams's house and found Hughes and the latter in the door-way talking. The two men quarrelled, but the widow pacified them.

TWO FLEE PRISON GANG AT SING SING

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Paul Kelly, member of the Ninth avenue gang which was wrecked at Fifty-third street and Ninth avenue in September, 1905, killing twelve persons, and former Policeman Charles F. WANTS REFERENDUM ON CITY CHARTER

After severely criticising the city charter amendments proposed by the Finance Committee at the Dorchester Driving Club's meeting, former Senator Thomas H. Dowd declared for a referendum. He said: "Let the referendum be attached to the proposed charter, and let us remember in this centenary of the incorporated Provident Lincoln that this government is a government of the people, for the people and by the people. I believe the citizens of Boston are capable of determining what they want."

BILL OF EXCEPTIONS IN THE MORSE CASE

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The amended bill of exceptions in the case of Charles W. Morse, the convicted banker who is now in the Tombs, was filed in the United States Circuit Court. The bill of exceptions is made up of 717 typewritten pages and contains the principal exceptions taken by the defence during the trial. A new motion to have Morse released on bail will be made in the near future, it is said.

WAR CRISIS IN BALKANS

CETTINJE, Montenegro, Feb. 10.—A break in diplomatic relations between Montenegro and Austria is believed to be imminent to-day as a result of Austria's unsatisfactory answer to Montenegro's protest against Austria's warlike activities.

The Cabinet was called in session to-day to consider the question.

Austria sent a note to Montenegro explaining her seizure of the Italian ship Regina Davide, bound from Venice to Antivari, on the ground that the bonds of marauders who are swarming over Bosnia and Herzegovina are undoubtedly entering the provinces by way of Montenegro, and that the Regna Davide was suspected of bringing arms for the marauders. The seizure, Austria contends, was entirely proper.

It is expected that Montenegro will also demand an explanation for the presence of twelve Austrian warships in Spizza Bay, the coast of which they are now patrolling, and the concentration of machine guns on the Montenegrin frontier.

KING EDWARD, BERLIN GUEST, WINS PLAUDITS

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—The civic authorities of the capital were reconciled by the visiting royalty to-day for the first time when King Edward appeared as a guest of the municipality at a reception in the City Hall. The British sovereign was in his most democratic mood and mingled freely among the other guests, chatting affably with tradesmen and Aldermen and drinking a glass of wine served to him by pretty Fraulein Kierschner, the burgomaster's daughter.

His conduct has greatly established his popularity with the Berlin citizens, who are freely contrasting it with the rigid etiquette observed and demanded by their own sovereign in all his relations with them.

One cause of the friction that has prevented friendly relations between King Edward and his nephew, Emperor William, and thatand that is said to be largely responsible for the King's failure to visit Berlin before yesterday for over twenty years, is generally asserted to be the Kaiser's refusal to recognize the status of the lady whose name has been openly associated with that of the King as friend, confidante and entertainer.

The story goes that at the Kiel regatta several years ago the King asked the Kaiser to invite this lady to the banquet on the imperial yacht. The Kaiser absolutely refused, whereupon the King, in high dudgeon, broke off all relations with his nephew.

Fortunately, the lady in question does not accompany the King to Berlin, although many here are wondering how His Majesty will be able to support existence during his enforced separation.

Where the King goes she goes, and where she cannot go the King will not go. The only exception that has been made of late years in this visit to Berlin, where the King is accompanied by the Queen,

BERLIN—The American Women's Club of Berlin, with its regularity of receptions and entertainments, is the veritable centre of activity and intellectual intercourse for the American colony.

The average American woman arriving here, uninformed and unacquainted with the German capital, is advised to "go and introduce yourself to the Woman's Club."

The organization, in addition to being a bureau of aid and instruction to girl students, is a social "clearing house" and fountain of general information for American women who may wish to avail themselves of its privileges.

Women to Pray for Votes.

LONDON—The militant suffragettes, instead of taking the street against the police, will invoke divine aid for their propaganda. The leaders, M. G. Fawcett and Lady Frances Balfour, have issued an appeal to sympathizers to assemble at Westminster Abbey on February 15, the day before the opening of Parliament, to intercede for the furtherance of the cause during the coming session.

Plans Royal Concert.

VIENNA—Professor Eugene Thomas has arranged a concert, every number of which, for voice, piano or orchestra, was composed by a king or prince. He began with Henry VIII and ended with William II. Verdi's Song of Aegir was the last number on the programme.

No Fight on Life Term.

PARIS—Pierre Renard and Georges Courtois, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Banker August Remy Ister June, are apparently satisfied with the verdict and their lawyers announced to-day that no attempt would be made to get a new trial.

Russian Railroad Graft.

ST. PETERSBURG—Two-thirds of the passengers on the Russian railways are either deadheads or travel with bogus tickets.

Men organized with the system do not bother buying tickets when travelling in Russia. They simply board a train, bribe the conductor and make their journey without further cost.

Though the railroads have unearthed the fraud their efforts to put an end to it have thus far proved futile.

Fisheries Treaty Approved.

LONDON—The British Government has forwarded to Washington its formal authorizing of the fisheries agreement on behalf of Newfoundland.

WOMAN HELD FOR LARCENY OF $2,500

Seated beside a sheriff in a Pullman car, Mrs. Hattie Roy, the woman arrested at the North Station yesterday, charged with larceny of $2,500 from J. L. Peck of St. Johnsbury, Vt., is to-day speeding toward Vermont. As the Montreal express pulled into the station last night, two Hanover street station policemen were waiting for Mrs. Roy at the request of Sheriff Merrill of St. Johnsbury. The woman took her arrest calmly and said she would return without requisition papers.

According to Mr. Peck, who boards at the Roy home, he withdrew $2,000 from the bank and placed it with $500 more in his room, intending to send it to Boston for investment. The next morning the money was gone, he says, and Mrs. Roy had also gone to Boston. Mrs. Roy says that Peck never paid any board and gave her the $1,000. When searched she had $1,243.87 on her person.

WHISKEY FOR COLDS

The increased use of whiskey for colds is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following formula is wonderfully effective:

Mix two ounces of glycerine with eight ounces of good whiskey and add one-half ounce of Concentrated pine compound. Take a teaspoonful or a tablespoonful every four hours.

Concentrated pine compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago, but it, as well as the other ingredients, can be had from any good druggist.

Concentrated pine is a special pine product refined for medical use, and comes only in half-ounce bottles, each enclosed in a tin screw-top case, which is air-tight to retain all the original strength of the fluid, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated."

SODEN IS NOW NAMED BY SMALL IN DIVORCE SUIT

Mrs. Small Missing; Husband Is Baffled in Attempt to Serve Libel.

Frederick L. Small, who caused a sensation in Boston and throughout Massachusetts by filing suit for $500,000 alienation damages against Arthur H. Soden, former baseball magnate, has added to the suit the first action made by applying to the courts for divorce and naming the same man.

In the $500,000 suit Mr. Small alleges that Mr. Soden, who used to be one of the famous owners of the Boston National League Baseball Club, took the affections of the former's wife away from her husband.

Lawyer George Libby, the attorney for Small, said to-day that he filed the alienation suit at the time he filed the alienation suit, but asserts that he has been unable to locate Mrs. Small to serve papers on her. The lawyer is trying to trace her, but so far has been baffled.

In the divorce suit Mr. Small accuses Mrs. Small of impropriety, mentioning November 11, 1908.

All parties to the case are reticent. Mr. Small, who is in the brokerage business, will not go into details regarding his charges, and says he does not know where his wife now is. Nothing from her, him in regard to either suit has yet been made public. Mr. Soden, who is very highly esteemed by business and other associates, is said to be confined to his bed at home. He is a director in financial institutions, commercial, manufacturing and transportation corporations, and for years has been an influential figure in Boston banking and trade circles.

Refuses Details.

But while Mr. Small refused to go into details as to his half a million dollars damage suit, he did state that he is anxious to tell the story of his alleged wrongs to a judge and a jury.

"I am not going into any details now," said Mr. Small. "Nor to my attorney, George Libby of No. 1 Beacon street, if you want any more information at present than is given in the court papers already filed. He will know what to tell you."

"But what does your wife say?"

"I don't know where my wife has gone," said Mr. Small. "She packed her trunks and left as soon as I received her and mentioned Soden. I shall not say what my evidence is at present. I think it will come before a jury that Soden broke up my home.

"I loved my wife dearly, and she was a sweet, true and dutiful wife until Soden came into our lives. When I married her she was Miss Laura M. Patterson of Everett, and we were married in 1898. Since her wedding both her father and mother have died. We had no children, but were very happy together until Soden came to our home. I took him there because he was a chess and checker player, and I found him a very companionable man.

"I had business relations with him and many of the thousands of dollars he has won within a few years passed through my hands. I liked him and I trusted him. I do not think he would ever wrong me or my wife, who was one of the sweetest and most womanly women I have ever known.

Realized His Mistake.

"I realize now what a mistake I made in admitting him to my home. I will not go into any details as to what he did there. I have used him for alienating the affections of my wife. I have the time named in my charges will be properly presented with the evidence I have to sustain them.

"The cases against my wife for divorce and Mr. Soden for alienation will go right on as the law directs. I have long since made up my mind, and the steps I have taken were not made upon the first impulse of anger. It is the only redress I have for the breaking up of my home. I am perfectly sure that I can satisfy the court and an equity jury that the evidences as quickly as the cases can be reached."

Mr. Small is a native of Maine and about thirty-five years old, and many years the junior of Mr. Soden. He came to Boston when he was twenty-two years old, and recently entered the brokerage business and now holds a seat, with Mr. Soden, in Williston Company at No. 19 Congress street.

Attorney Libby, his counsel, is a Maine man, too, and for four years was county attorney in Portland, that State. When asked what evidence Mr. Small would offer to convince a judge and jury that Mr. Soden had robbed him of a wife's love and done him such injury that he could claim one of the largest amounts ever asked for in a damage suit in this or any other State, Attorney Libby replied:

"While the divorce libel has been filed and the papers have not yet been served upon the libelee and co-respondent. This will be done in the regular order. It will then be time to show my whereabouts of Mrs. Small. Otherwise, the papers will be served upon the wrong party of slender.

"I do not expect an answer to the charges made in the divorce libel, after the papers have been served, and thirty days elapse from last Saturday, are allowed for an answer or the allegations. I expect to be over with the case well reach the court for jury trial. It may be months, or possibly a year."

Ill at His Home.

As Mr. Soden has not talked about the suit to the public, all that is really known about it is conveyed in the declaration filed with the clerk of the Superior Court. Mr. Soden lives in a handsome home in Newtonville and it was stated that he was ill when a reporter called there to ask what he had to say in reply to Mr. Small's court charges. It was stated at his home that he was in bed.

Very sensational evidence is expected when the suit is tried, and the papers in the declaration are very startling in themselves. They astonish the friends of Mr. Soden, who has always stood high for business probity and is one of the men who helped to make the national game what it is to-day.

When he was a baseball magnate there was but one big league club in Boston, and he and his two associates owned it. It was reputed to have frequently made a big fortune each in a single season. He sold his club with the pennant many times, and thousands of patrons of the game came to know him by sight at the Columbus avenue grounds. He was always a good sport in national baseball. He became part owner of a club that was destined to be often of championship calibre when the game was struggling to its feet, and when it did it had helped to make it one of the soundest financial institutions in the country.

HILL OFFERED MORAN'S POST SAYS 'WAITING'

The latest indications are that Arthur D. Hill will be selected a week from to-day to fill the unexpired term of John B. Moran as District Attorney, up to January 1, 1911.

In an interview to-day Mr. Hill, while non-committal on the matter, intimates that he would accept the position. In some circles it is stated that Governor Draper has actually offered the place to Mr. Hill, and that he has practically accepted it.

When asked if he was a candidate for the office of District Attorney, Mr. Hill said:

"I have not said that I would be a candidate for the office of district attorney. I am just sitting back."

If that position were offered me or if I decided to become a candidate for the office I would consider it very carefully before either accepting or rejecting. I have talked all over this State on nonpartisanship and I would not enter into anything which would be against my principles.

"I am not looking for the office. No man is looking for an office that carries him the loss of any money. I could not possibly accomplish as much if I were to give up my present work for the office of district attorney."

If Mr. Hill does go into the office his friends predict that he will make a clean sweep of the several districts, with the exception, perhaps, of Mr. Dwyer, who would be loath to part from Moran, whose intimate knowledge of the routine and his recognized abilities as a trial lawyer.

WOMAN FIGHTS FOR $19,000 ALIMONY

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—After being found by private detectives employed by his wife, from whom he has been separated for several years, Henry G. Moore of No. 2,783 Broadway, said to be the son of a wealthy Philadelphia distiller, now dead, was arrested. His wife charges that for the last three years he has been living with another woman in an apartment house where they were known as Mr. and Mrs. Belmont.

The matron of the workingman's home on Washington street, South End, sent Thanksgiving dinner out to big her four pairs of corsets, giving him $15 to pay for them. Trumble bought three, spent the rest of the money for whiskey and turned up at the home boiling drunk. Judge Fitz sent him to the House of Correction for four months.

The sub-postoffice in M. O'Donnell's drug store, Cambridge, was robbed of 150 postal money order blanks and the offices stamp. The thief is described as 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds, wearing a black suit and dark gray coat.

Yee Dung Ging, who went smack in Chinatown January 12, was sent to State prison for twelve years yesterday. George H. Dimond, with a long record, got the same sentence for attacking George W. Hill with an iron bar in a Chelsea stable.

Louise V. Cardinal of Marlboro has won her suit to prove her ownership of the $500 diamond ring left to her by the late Isaac G. Worcester, for whom she was housekeeper. His relatives contested the gift.

Tunnel passengers had an unpleasant experience when the lights went out at 9.15 o'clock last night as was seven minutes before the stations were relighted. There was little excitement, but some of the women were nervous.

The first strike of Boston bartenders in a long time has been declared against Peets, Vogel Co., at No. 848 Washington street. The strikers say the manager of the firm has refused to live up to the terms of an agreement.

PEN SKETCH OF DR. CHAPMAN AT GREAT REVIVAL

By REV. A. E. GEORGE.

What is the secret of the power of Dr. Chapman?

I sat the other day directly in front of him at Tremont Temple and watched him in repose.

The audience was singing heartily.

Dr. Chapman at the conclusion of the singing would rise.

His face during this interval afforded a study.

It is a strong attractive face.

Not the face of an orator, but one of sympathy, devotion and trust in his impartial Saviour—a face that has written upon its outlines the kind, tender, gracious interest in his fellowmen.

These qualities are still further evidenced in his manner when he arises to speak.

There is a dignity in his manner. His poise as well as every movement are so unlike the conventional evangelist. He wins you before you are conscious of his influence. He does not make you feel his personality.

He makes you feel that he is a man deeply in earnest and that he desires to strike a chord of sympathy in your heart, which will arouse you to nobler responsibilities.

It is his manhood that stands out before you in the fullness of its power.

He shows nothing of the professionalism. He looks and talks at times like a businessman and approaches his audience like one who is writing letters and his claims is in the manner and method of a business man.

Impresses His Audience.

Just as soon as he opens his lips, and delivers his message, you can't help but listen to it, because he keeps his manhood to the front and does not allow his professionalism to run away with him.

He keeps this so well under control that you forget he is a clergyman, and you admire his manhood.

He has an experience and he paves the way through his sentences to widen your interests in the King's business.

He knows how to put truth, not in the forms of theology but in ways that will impress you as if it were entirely a matter of business.

Consequently you get interested in his message because he has led you to forget he is an evangelist, and you feel that his manhood is uplifting and inspiring.

There is something in his voice. Here we do not find the professional air. It is not tuned to a clerical pitch.

It is a deep, mellow, incisive harsh, but well managed even in the moments of extreme pathos as he goes through the hour. You feel it in those intervals when he bends over to talk to you, or a friend pleading in your seat to the service of the King.

He says what you cannot help agreeing with, because he says over and over again the experience of many a human heart. He tells you what you have found to be true.

You may have forgotten it. He will call it to mind.

He has an definitions to put before you, but what you have found to be true.

He calls up the worst out of the earth to show you that there is something better to do.

Shows Better Side of Nature.

He shows the better side of your nature, and you know it.

You feel his description, they sink in, they draw you to him as he patiently deals with human infirmities. You feel that some kind sympathetic life is pleading for you to accept Christ.

I saw one old man crying near me.

I felt sure that he was under gospel influence.

Here was another human soul opening its heart to a larger number of people.

He is simple and persuasive in a marked degree, and is a great specimen of what a high-class, old-fashioned evangelist should be to be influencing people in need of help without threatening them.

The way that he can handle men is he did on the platform to-day when I heard him rub his easily convince the most stubborn that no one need have the dread of a revival conducted in his unique way.

He gives you something to think about. He wants to get you to find out for you.

He helps to bring it out, and when you see it you feel that you have found your own little about it, even though he moves you from point to point.

It is not the effort, however, to show his skill as a preacher, but to see how one himself changed by the influence that he has exerted and the results to follow.

MISS ANGELA GOOD, THE BRIDE TO-DAY OF 'BILLY' LYONS

NOTED ATHLETE WEDS RICH GIRL

Five hundred invitations have been issued for the wedding to-day of Miss Angela J. Good and "Billy" Lyons, the famous oarsman, at St. Patrick's Church in Roxbury.

Behind the wedding of the popular young couple there is a pretty romance—not the least feature of which is the fact that a rich girl is marrying a comparatively poor boy.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. J. Good, the father being dead. She is a talented painter, and on their honeymoon trip, which will embrace a year's tour through Europe, she will visit all of the great galleries and feast her soul on the masterpieces of the world.

When her father died Miss Good inherited a fortune in her own right. She resides at No. 19 Dale street, Roxbury.

Although known by his friends almost entirely as "Billy," the happy young man's full name is William T. Lyons. He has led the Farragut Boat Club to victory on many a hard fought river battle. He is stalwart of build and has a Gibson face.

'AFFINITY' OF KENTUCKY GIRL DIES OF WORRY

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—William Milne, the $15,000-a-year face salesman of this city whom Mrs. Jane Parks Caldwell, the trial-marriage beauty of Eminence, Ky., brought into public view a month ago as her "affinity," is dead, mostly from worry, at his home in the little Jersey suburb of Haworth.

Notwithstanding the spuit of scandal in which the jolly "drummer" was caught, he passed away peacefully in the bosom of his family. His wife, a gentle and forgiving Christian soul, has overlooked his frailties, and when he fell ill of pneumonia a week ago, as the coupld were on their way South, she ministered to him with every possible kindness, and was overcome with grief when he passed away.

According to a statement made last night by the family physician, Dr. Alfred W. Ward of Closter, N. J., Milne had only a moderately severe case of pneumonia, and would have thrown off the disease but for his enfeebled physical condition, due to the excitement and worry of his sensational connection with the Kentucky coquette.

Kentucky Beauty Missing.

The latter, according to a statement last night from her counsel, Mahlon Freeman, left New York about two weeks ago, and is now back home with her own and her husband's folks in Kentucky. A dispatch from Eminence, Ky., last night said she had not returned home and that her husband has filed suit for a divorce.

Milne leaves a widow, no son, William and a married daughter, Mrs. Lillian Blair. The son said last night that his mother had never contemplated any suit for a divorce and had never taken any serious attention to stories of his escapade well.

Trial Marriage

For a few days in January last the gushing Kentucky girl gave New York a series of heart to heart talks about "her Billy" that caused every member of the Alimony Club, and some more, to become interested, and on Jan. 11 she announced her arrival, in an interview. Milne, she said, had brought her here from Cincinnati. She said she had married Charles A. Caldwell, of Eminence, Ky., on Christmas Day, 1906. "I told him on our wedding day," she said, 'that if, after a month of married life, it should prove distasteful to me, I would leave him. He agreed to the terms. I tried it for a week, which was by far too long, and then I left him."

Meantime, she said, she had written to Milne, whom she had known for years, and he agreed to meet her in Cincinnati and they would live together. In telling him she was going to meet a sick friend, and slipped off to the rendezvous. The couple came to New York.

BISHOP GROWING BLIND.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10.—Since last Spring, Bishop Ozi W. Whitaker has been steadily growing blind. For months the venerable Bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania has been unable to read.

LAWMAKERS ON GUARD FOR MELLEN TRICK

Frightened by the attitude of the State's legal department, the temper of members of the Legislature and an aroused public opinion, the two highest officials of the New Haven road sought an opportunity to meet Governor Draper and Attorney-General Malone in a private conference and promised that in the future the New Haven railroad would behave and obey the Massachusetts laws.

To-day at the State House legislators are saying, "Beware of the Greeks when they come bearing gifts."

The plea for clemency marks the end of a legal battle between the Commonwealth and the New Haven Road over the illegal acquisitions of trolley and steam transportation properties.

The BOSTON AMERICAN began the fight against railroad monopoly in New England and on June 14, 1906, filed an information with the Attorney-General requesting him to bring suit in the supreme court to the nature of non-competitive proceedings to have the "grab" of the street railways by the New Haven declared illegal and void.

The highest court in Massachusetts rendered an opinion throughout that the New Haven & Hartford Railroad was a lawbreaker.

It has been given out in press reports that the Governor invited Mr. Mellen and Mr. Byrnes to come down to Maine prior to not so. The New Haven officials sought the privilege of an interview with the Governor and Attorney-General. It was said on reliable authority that they pleaded "guilty" to the State officials, but thought they had a right to buy electric roads and railroad stock in this State. But they promised they would not do so any more and suggests that a general law be made to cover the entire case, to which might be attached a severe penalty for violation of its provisions.

The Attorney-General, it is understood, will confer with the leaders of the opposition to the New Haven road and endeavor to frame a bill that will meet the situation.

Illustrating the inability of the New Haven road through its officials to assume even for one day a consistent attitude are statements made by its chief counsel, Charles F. Choate, to the railroad committee yesterday, and by Mr. Mellen in a newspaper interview.

Who Is Right and Why?

Mr. Choate, in opposing certain bills proposed to compel the New Haven road to obey Massachusetts laws, said it might be necessary for the New Haven to consent to the revocation of its charter. This was taken to mean that in the event of forfeiture, innocent stockholders would suffer severe financial loss.

Mr. Mellen, questioned about the necessary reports of the possible abrogation of the railroad charter in Massachusetts by the Legislature, is quoted:

"There is, and has been, no truth whatever in any such presumption. Such reports are absolutely false—unworthy of the attention of people of intelligence."

Hundreds of Society People At Hazaar Lend Aid
To Worthy Work of Boston Council of Jewish Women

Undaunted by the inclement weather, hundreds of society people thronged the bazaar of the Boston section of the Council of Jewish Women at Horticultural Hall today. Unprecedented success has crowned the second and last day of the bazaar. It is expected that the largest attendance of the two days will be seen to-night.

Handsome sums of money were realized at each of the tastily arranged tables, in the manicure parlor, the restaurant and the fortune telling tent.

The thousands of dollars realized at the bazaar are to be devoted to carrying on the juvenile court and immigration work which the council has established.

Dozens of pretty girls, tastily gowned in white, were in attendance at the tables. The valentine table, festooned with cupids and hearts, attracted much favorable comment. The younger Jewish set was well represented. Miss Rosie Schoenhof and Miss Rena White were in charge of the valentine table.

Their assistants were Miss Wilhelmina Kurtz, Miss Isabelle Lissner, Miss Jessie Goldsmith, Miss Claire Levy, Miss Irene Seitz, Miss Evelyn B. Hyneman, Miss Aimee Barnet, Miss Helen Myers, Miss Ruth Seligman and Miss Olga Fishel.

One of the many novelties of the bazaar was the floral surprise table. It was decorated with carnations and red jack roses. Miss Eva Van Domm and Mrs. Leo Van Vliet were in charge.

The parlor, where a dozen pretty maids acted as manicure girls, was the rendezvous of many. The parlor was under the supervision of Miss Lillian Laufferty. Miss Louise Fishel and Miss Rosalind Hurtig. Mrs. Ely Fleiderman was in charge of the fair, being chairman of the bazaar and restaurant committees. She was assisted by a committee of fifty.

In the restaurant foods brought from the kitchens of the members were served. A stringed orchestra discovered music in the main hall. The decorative scheme consisted of roses and carnations, interspersed with laurel and greenery.

The bazaar closes at 10 o'clock to-night.

PLAN EMMET PARADE.

A parade through the principal streets of the city is planned. William J. Walshe, the noted lecturer, has been engaged for the occasion.

MEN STARVE AS BOSTON JOKES, WARNS SWIFT

"The question of the unemployed to be taken up in a serious way by England, Germany and Switzerland, but here in Boston and Massachusetts it is taken as a joke."

Morrison I. Swift appeared before the Committee on Labor at the State House today and made this statement while speaking for his bill providing for a commission of three to be appointed by the Governor to investigate the cost of living in this State and to determine a minimum wage.

"We have a condition that must be met, and if it is not met now it will be a great disgrace to the State of Massachusetts. The question of providing employment for the unemployed is attracting the attention of the whole world to-day, and the people of Boston have turned their heads in the sand and ignored it. I ask this committee to throw aside that attitude and approach this question in a serious manner.

"Many people say to me: 'Keep still, we know that there are many people out of work, but we will talk prosperity and pass prosperity is new to follow.' Don't make the poor workingmen scapegoats of future prosperity. Give me that when you suppress the truth. The prosperity in this country is in the hands of a few people like E. H. Harriman, who owns one-third of the railroad mileage in the country. Prosperity has not reached the people in general."

E. Gerry Brown of Brockton said that he was heartily in favor of the appointment of a commission as provided for by Mr. Swift.

HOUSE COUNTS TAFT'S VOTES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The electoral votes determining the election of Wm. H. Taft as President and James S. Sherman as Vice President, were counted shortly after noon to-day in the House of Representatives at a joint session of the House and Senate.

The ceremonies were short and simple and were witnessed by a distinguished gathering in the galleries, admission to which was by card. The Vice President presided jointly with the speaker.

KIDNEY RECIPE WORTH KNOWING

Best Prescription Obtainable for Backache and Kidneys.

Here is a prescription that is probably the most effective combination obtainable for the prompt relief of all the distressing forms of disordered kidneys, such as acute pains in the back and groin, rheumatic pains in joints and muscles, frequent and scanty urination, etc.

"Half ounce fluid extract Buchu; half ounce Murax compound; six ounces good pure gin; mix and shake bottle well each time and take in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after meals."

Murax Compound is a product of the Standard Chemical Co. laboratories in Chicago, but it, as well as the other ingredients, can be had of any druggist.

If kidney disorders are not promptly checked they frequently terminate in chronic rheumatism, Bright's disease and diabetes.

CUTICURA CURED CHIEF OF POLICE

Canadian Officer Poisoned by Weeds — Eczema Developed and Legs Became Scaly — Ankles were Very Sore and Itchy — For Weeks He Could Not Wear Shoes.

FREED FROM ITCHING BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I have been successfully cured of dry eczema. I was inspecting the removal of noxious weeds, it being part of my duty, from the edge of a river and was constantly in the dust from the weeds. At night I shook out my trousers and observed that my limbs felt a prickly sensation. I paid no attention to it for two years, but noticed a scum on my legs like fish scales. I could scrape it off, and yet I did not attend to it until it came to be too itchy and sore and began getting two running sores. My ankles were all sore and scabby and I could not wear shoes. I had to use canes and felt slippers for weeks. I was then on particular police duty and was compelled to be on duty. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment. In less than ten days I could put on my boots and in less than three weeks, though on duty all the time, I was free from the complaint. I have used Cuticura freely and that Cuticura saved me from what the doctors called a bad leg. Capt. George E. Bliss, Police Constable, Morris, Manitoba, Mar. 20, 1907, and Sept. 24, 1908."

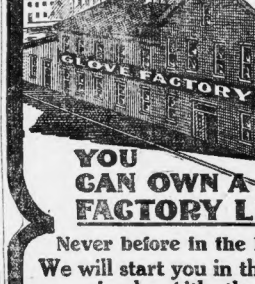
Let Us Help You To Be A Manufacturer And Factory owner

Under Our New Plan We Give You Tools And Equipment FREE

YOU CAN OWN A FACTORY LIKE THIS



Never before in the history of business has help like this been offered to ambitious men.

We will start you in the Canvas Glove Business and give you without cost the necessary tools, simply with the understanding that you buy supplies and material from us so long as our prices are as low or lower than you can get elsewhere.

Seven Years Ago a canvas glove was hardly known, except a few made by hand by farmers' wives. Everybody then wore leather gloves. Today there are six pairs of canvas gloves worn, where formerly only one pair of leather gloves was used. Canvas gloves are driving the leather ones out of the market. This very fact has created a demand for canvas glove factories all over the country, and opened the way for ambitious men to go into business for themselves.

Immense Profits are made in this fascinating business. The McCreery Brothers started only a few years ago without a cent. They actually borrowed $100 to start with. Today they have thousands of dollars, own their own large factory, have interests in others, and do an enormous business. They have started a few other men in the glove business, and they will help you to start, too, furnishing you with tools and equipments free, and teaching you the secrets of the business.

No Experience is required. We teach you the secrets of the business and furnish you tools and equipments free. We have taken men who had never had a day's practical business experience, and started them on the road to wealth. These men started in a modest way, but soon built large factories, work lots of help, have a big stock of cloth and machinery on hand and a good balance in the bank. What these men have done, you can do.

No Capital is required. We teach you the secrets of the business; we furnish you tools and equipments without charge according to our free proposition. All you require is a little money to buy a stock of cloth; even less than $100.00 will start you.

The book which we send free. It relates our own experience and gives valuable information about the secrets of the Glove Business and its wonderful opportunities. Write for it.

Unlimited Demand — There is no class of goods for which there is such a steady demand as for canvas gloves and mittens. They are the popular glove for the masses. Everybody uses them—the farmer, the mechanic, the doctor, the lawyer, the merchant, the laborer—in all sections of the country—from Maine to California, and from Minnesota to the Gulf. There is actually room today for ten canvas glove factories where we have only one now.

Our New Plan makes it easy for any man to start in business for himself. We give you free the necessary tools, such as expensive handmade dies, cutting table, maple cutting block, turning machine, cloth rack, rawhide maul, knife, pattern and equipment. No matter how small or how large your town—no matter what section you live in—there is always room for a factory. Any merchant can make the gloves he sells himself, and soon be making gloves for other stores.

Don't Miss This opportunity, even if you have to borrow the small amount of money necessary to buy a stock of cloth to start with. You should be able to pay it back in a very short time and have money in the bank besides. There will be many fortunes made in the canvas glove business in the next few years. You can start a factory in any spare room at home, or small store room, and enlarge it as your business demands.

We Mean Business when we say we furnish tools free, we mean exactly what we say. All we ask is that you buy your cloth from us, but we don't even ask that unless we can furnish it at as low or lower prices than you can buy elsewhere.

FREE to speak of is required. We teach you the secrets of the business; we furnish you tools and equipments without charge according to our free proposition. All you require is a little money to buy a stock of cloth; even less than $100.00 will start you.

This Liberal Offer Your Stepping Stone to Success

God Helps Those Who Help Themselves

We Start You in a Business of Your Own, right in your own town. Are you willing to make an effort to better your condition, or are you content to plod along, working for someone else, who makes a profit on your labor? Every man is worthy of his hire, and if you can make a profit for the man who hires you, you can make that profit for yourself.

Every Man, no matter how humble, is entitled to at least the profits of his own labor. If you, comrade, have the ambition to better your condition—to be somebody—to provide for yourself and your family—to enjoy success, and happiness and prosperity—we can help you.

This is not a get-rich-quick or catch-penny scheme, but simply a straight, honest, legitimate business proposition—an opportunity to get into the manufacturing business for yourself. A business which, with a reasonable amount of light work and attention to business, should make you a prosperous factory owner in a very short time. The small amount of money which is required to be invested is spent entirely for cloth, supplies and other necessities of the business; we furnish you the tools and equipment free. There is no waste material, no dead stock. Every yard of cloth can be turned back into cash.

COME WITH US, and let us start you in the profitable, legitimate business at once. Why delay until someone else is your town secures the tremendous possibilities of this business, and starts ahead of you?

JAY GOULD, the greatest financier this country has ever known, once said that "$100 invested at the right time in the right place, is worth a lifetime of labor," which simply means that the man who is big enough and broad enough to recognize opportunity when he sees it, will reap the reward which he could not otherwise gain from a lifetime of labor.

Comrade, opportunity is knocking at your door right now, as you read this offer. If you are big enough, and broad enough to recognize that knock, you can make the investment which will be worth to you a life-time of labor. Here is a chance where with even less than $100 you can start on an honorable career as a successful business man. You cannot possibly lose anything by investigation, and it may mean financial success to you. Do not delay. Today the opportunity is open to you; tomorrow may be too late. Our ability to assist others in starting factories is limited so our ability to furnish them with raw material, and just as soon as enough have become associated with us to absorb our capital, we shall be obliged to withdraw this offer. IT IS SO VERY EASY TO GET THE FULL DETAILS OF OUR PROPOSITION. SIMPLY SIGN AND SEND US THE COUPON.

MERRY ROUND OF FETES FOR HUB'S ELITE

Society is busy to-day with the regular mid-week festivities, and besides the scheduled round of events there is a multitude of minor festivities to interest the elite.

The weekly French conference, which takes place at the home of Miss Cary on Marlboro street, the recital by Francis Rogers at Wellesley Hills for the benefit of the new Wellesley Hospital, Mr. and Mrs. John Ralston Thomas's at-home at No. 315 Commonwealth avenue, the Bank Officers' dinner at Mechanics Building this evening, and Mrs. Wyman's chafing dish party at her home on Newbury street, are a few of the day's most interesting diversions.

Society folk are deserting in such rapid fire succession that it looks as though there would be few left in town to participate in the brilliant events scheduled for the season's wind-up.

Admiral and Mrs. Bowles and Miss Katherine Bowles are among the latest to decide upon a foreign trip, and will set sail for Europe to-morrow for a tour Thomas sailed from New York for an extended stay abroad and Dr. Thomas Dwight and his niece, Miss Ruth Dwight, will sail on April 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lyman, who have been the house guests in Washington of Representative and Mrs. Wayne Parker, have returned to their home on Beacon street and will resume their weekly hospitalities.

Miss Mary Shreve Ames, who has been giving so many delightful entertainments this season, has cards out for a dinner dance at the Algonquin Club, Wednesday the 17th.

Mrs. Sylvester Tower and the Misses Tower gave a delightful at-home yesterday afternoon at their home, 299 Commonwealth avenue. Mrs. Francois W. Chandler and the Misses Ethel and Helen Chandler of Marlboro street are planning a trip to North Carolina the end of the month, to remain for several weeks.

Mrs. Elberton R. Chapman of New York is the guest of Mrs. Frank L. Hitchcock at her home on Commonwealth avenue. Mrs. Hitchcock has given several hospitalities in honor of her guest, who will return to her home the end of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis, who have been spending the past few years in Europe, will return in the early Spring, bringing with them their interesting young family.

The musical element of the smart set is more than usually interested in the Debussy evening at Ferry Court on the evening of February 25. Mrs. Hall McAllister is arranging the affair and the artists will be Miss Mary Davidson of the Metropolitan Opera House and Ernest Schelling.

Mrs. Arthur Cheney entertained the Circolo Italiano yesterday at her home on Marlboro street. The conference upon Gabriele d'Annunzio, which was given by Dr. Lamberto G. Marrucci. The lecture was followed by 4 tea.

Edward Brooks, his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Brooks, and his sister, Miss Fanny Brooks, are spending the week in New York.

Mrs. A. M. Rogers of Warner street, West Somerville, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ethel M. Haile, to Horace C. Baker of New York City.

Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman of Beacon street is spending 40 week at Beverly.

Mrs. John Mark Graham has issued cards for a reception at her Commonwealth avenue home February 17 in honor of Miss Gladys Smith of New York, whose engagement to her son, Edward Howland Graham was announced last week. Miss Smith, who is a petite brunette, has spent most of her Summers at Narragansett Pier, will be much entertained during her visit here, as she is known in the best set and has been very popular.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Noyes of Bay State road have been for several days at the Hotel Wolcott in New York on their way to Florida for a stay of several weeks. They will so arrange their trip that they will be in Washington for the inauguration.

DEATH VALLEY BAND FOUND NEAR DEATH

Cures Drunkards

Jary's Miracle.

The day of working miracles,
I'm up to far from none,
And now to show you what I mean,
I'll tell you of the last
God one that happened right to me,
By I was part of it, you see.

You by the life I used to lead—
O old, a living death,
A debard of the hopeless kind—
No scarce a sober breath
Ever drew, and hope and pride
Were lost to me and nearly all beside.

Golden Remedy brings happiness to the family—saves the loved ones.

One friend alone was left—my wife,
God bless her evry heart!
She saved me from a drunkard's grave,
And whisper it ye who dare,
Just how she saved me you shall see—
This is the way she told it me.

When hope was almost dead within
Her faithful, constant breast,
She read of Dr. Haines' Cure,
Then without stay or rest,
She sent for one Trial Sample free,
And gave it unbeknown to me!

I drank of it at ev'ry meal—
I ate it in my bread,
While Mary watched me anxiously,
But ne'er a word she said;
Until one day I stopped to think,
That I had lost me love for drink!
When, quite unconscious, I was cured,
My Mary told me all;
It seemed the very act of God,
A modern miracle;
I call it this, because my wife
And Haines' Cure had saved my life.

And now my little story's done,
My ev'ry word is true,
And what this treatment did for me,
The same 'twill do for you;
And wives and mothers—one and all,
Take heart of Mary's Miracle.

Save those near and dear to you from a life of degradation, poverty and disgrace. You can do it by cutting out this coupon.

Free Treatment Coupon.

Fill in your name and address on blank lines below. Then cut this coupon and mail it to Dr. J. W. Haines, 233 Prince street, Jersey City, N. J., and he will forward enough of the remedy to prove that it will cure drunkenness in any form. You give it in tea, coffee or food. The drunkard will stop drinking without knowing why. You will also get books and testimonials to prove how hundreds have been saved.

BISHOP SUIT FOR SUPPORT IS CONTINUED

The separate support suit brought by Mrs. DeLana Bishop against her husband, Charles E. Bishop, a wealthy Cambridge real estate operator, was to-day continued for one week by Judge Charles J. McIntire of the East Cambridge Probate Court.

A continuance was granted because Daniel Cooney, leading attorney for Bishop, was unable to be present. Mrs. Bishop was in court.

The court room was crowded and the continuance brought many disappointments.

In her suit for separate support Mrs. Bishop alleges that her husband refused to provide proper food for herself and her three children, and that he cut a padlock on the pantry door to prevent her from getting food.

Although Mrs. Bishop still lives in the same house with her husband on Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, she has a divorce suit pending in the Middlesex courts, in this latter suit she charges cruel and abusive treatment, and undue familiarity between Mr. Bishop and her own sister, Mrs. Eva Frothigh.

About People You Know

MRS. QUALTROUGH, the wife of Captain Qualtrough, the suspended captain of the battleship Georgia, arrived in New York on the Kronprinzessin. She was one of a party of the wives of naval officers who visited the ports where the big fleet sailed.

KNIVETT ESTCOURT HOWARD, brother of the Earl of Suffolk, who is at the Waldorf-Astoria, differed from exposures while hunting in British Columbia, but parts of one finger amputated. His hands and feet were frozen, and it was thought when he got to New York that amputation of all would be necessary to save his life, as gangrene threatened.

BLANCHE WALSH is much better at Kansas City. Dr. Samuel Ayres, her physician, said Miss Walsh had taken her malady at its inception, and would be able to leave the hospital at the week end.

"JACK" BINNS was presented with an address by the Mayor of Peterborough, England. He modestly declared that the men in the stoke-hold and engine room who remained for below to open safety valves when it seemed that the ship would sink instantly and thereby had prevented the Republic from blowing up were for greater heroes than he.

QUAKE RELIEF TO CONTINUE IN BOSTON

Bernard J. Rothwell, president of the Chamber of Commerce, arrived in Boston to-day from New York, where he had been on business since Friday, following a trip to Washington, where he held a conference with Miss Mabel Boardman of the Red Cross regarding the Italian relief work.

Though it had been announced in dispatches that owing to difficulties attending the distribution of funds in Italy the Massachusetts Italian Relief Fund committee would forward no more money to the earthquake zone, Mr. Rothwell denied this to-day.

"There is nothing which warrants any such statement," he said. "Our work is going on as it should. The relief work is in the hands of competent persons, and we shall continue distributing the funds as seems best. Our committee will hold a meeting in a day or two when the situation will be talked over, and possibly a statement will be issued."

The dispatches from Washington stated that the officials, including the Italian Red Cross authorities, were displeased with the lack of cooperation shown by the Italian government relief committee. Mr. Rothwell does not comment upon this report, but it is evident that the Massachusetts committee is proceeding with its humanitarian work.

EVERETT MAN SHOT IN ROBBER FIGHT

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 10.—William J. McCandless of Everett, Mass., has a bullet wound in his right hand and is minus $7 as the result of an encounter with a highwayman on King street last night. He put up a battle when held up and probably escaped being killed by grabbing the robber's revolver. In the struggle the gun went off, the bullet passing through Mr. McCandless's right hand.

Mr. McCandless was married recently to Miss Marion Judith Boynton, daughter of former Mayor Thomas J. Boynton of Everett. He and his bride arrived from their honeymoon a few weeks ago.

HEART FAILURE ENDS T. S. OLIVER'S LIFE

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Thomas S. Oliver, president of the Oliver Typewriter Company, fell dead of heart disease in the arms of his wife at the Argyle station of the Northwestern Railway to-night. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver had planned a trip to Pine Bluff, Ark., and were waiting for a train. Oliver was fifty-six years of age.

The Economical Beans

Some people say, "I fear that Van Camp's are too good to be economical." They think that they save by home baking. Here is what we reply:

If all people ate the beans which they like best, all would be eating Van Camp's.

All like their beans nutty, mealy and whole—like the tomato sauce baked in. They enjoy our delicious blend.

But many still bake their own beans. Not because they like home baking. Not because the work is inviting.

But they figure that, while they are losing goodness, they are saving cost. Let us see.

The main fact is this: No home in America has the facilities to make beans a digestible dish.

Home-baked beans always ferment and form gas. The reasons, they are not in digestible shape.

Suppose that one-third of your beans digest, and the other two-thirds go to waste. Suppose that two-thirds cause ill effects, while only one-third supplies nourishment.

Is there any economy there?

Dry heat can't break up the granules of the beans so the digestive juices can get to them.

You crisp the top beans in attempting it. But the beans farther down are seldom heated above 100 degrees.

That isn't even half enough to do what must be done. So, beans baked in dry heat, instead of digesting, always ferment and form gas. You lose a large part of their food value.

We bake our beans in live steam, superheated to 245 degrees. We bake in small parcels, so the full heat goes through.

Thus we bake without crisping—without baking a skin. Yet we bake the beans so they digest.

Figure as nothing the time and the fuel consumed in your process at home.

Figure the convenience as nothing. Though it means a great deal to have these meals ready for instant serving.

Figure only the multiplied food value of beans which have been properly baked. You will find that home-baked beans are costing fully twice as much as Van Camp's.

Van Camp's are delicious, digestible beans—the beans that all people like best. Yet they are, by all odds, the most economical.

Isn't that good to know?

Van Camp's BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE
PORK AND BEANS

Beans are 84 per cent nutriment. That's greater than meat. They form the choicest, cheapest food we have, when they are rightly baked.

Here is another economy:

Home-baked beans are usually served not more than once a week. People don't want them often.

But Van Camp's beans, in many homes, now form a daily dish. They are served for breakfast—in croquettes with ham. They form the luncheon's main dish, and the dinner's salad.

For people don't tire of Van Camp's.

See what that saves on meat bills. For beans, because of their nutriment, take the place of meat.

Van Camp's Pork and Beans are more than convenient. They are the very cheapest food you can buy. The more you serve the more you save. Try them today and see.

ETHEL N. WILSON, ARRESTED ON FORGERY CHARGE

LOVE OF HORSES TOO MUCH; GIRL HELD AS FORGER

Pretty and stylishly dressed Ethel N. Wilson, formerly Ethel N. Kimball, is again in the toils of the police because of her inordinate love for horses. She spent last night in the Charles Street Jail, on the charge of having passed a forged promissory note for $30 on a Brighton hotel keeper.

The name signed to the note was that of John H. Haskell. It was made payable to the woman's husband, Charles Wilson. He got $12 on the paper from former Councilman William Cox, who sent it to the Shawmut Bank, where it was found to be worthless. The arrest of the young woman followed. In default of $1,000 bail she was sent to jail.

Many times before this the young woman, the daughter of a once wealthy farmer, has been under arrest for defrauding hotel and livery stable keepers. Her father is Frank R. Kimball. The daughter was the wife of a painter, lives on Foster street, Brighton.

So far as the police have learned the young woman has never attempted to get money for other purposes than to hire rigs for driving or horses for riding purposes.

EYE TESTS BY NEW METHOD

"There are hundreds of people who are far-sighted and don't know it," says Dr. William C. Gregor, the well-known eye specialist, to-day. They think that because they can read type a long distance and see objects clearly at long range, their vision is perfect.

"By the old method of testing eyes many cases of far-sightedness were treated for near-sightedness, simply because the patient could by straining see about as well as though the eye were normal. Under the new method which I have perfected after fifteen years of experience, and which is in use at my office, No. 52 Winter street, it is impossible to make this mistake. In fact, I have all of the latest appliances for diagnosing eye troubles, and all of those can be corrected by the use of the proper glasses."

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS AND LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, N. Y., Feb. 10.—The Gould mystery is gradually becoming clear to Wall Street. It is probable that some day this week Kuhn, Loeb & Co. will announce a $25,000,000 bond issue for Missouri Pacific. The company needs this money in addition to what will be derived through transfer of securities from the Missouri Pacific treasury to the Wabash treasury. E. H. Harriman will in the near future be elected a director on Wabash, and Wabash will be made the leading operating road of Gould lines.

Wall Street is full of rumors that Harriman is also upon the Gould-Rock Island roads. Nothing of the kind has even been contemplated. Owing to the fact that the interests of Harriman are parallel and competing lines it would be clearly illegal. The arrangement that has been made does not reflect on the credit of Mr. Gould personally. Instead of working for himself and fighting all the powers that be in Wall Street, Gould has simply decided that there are interests with whom he must reckon. Gould is getting old, as in the past, as is working in harmony with them, and he is welcomed with open arms to that higher world into which but few are permitted to enter. These men finally surprised at what Mr. Gould has accomplished, single-handed, in the railroads.

The strength of Amalgamated and American Smelting stocks in the last few days, in the face of reports of a very discouraging nature touching the metal markets, is commonly ascribed to the presence of an extended bear account. It may be noted that a very small bear account would seem to be an extended one in so narrow a market. A short interest of 10,000 shares in many of the stocks could be quickly run up on a basis for a rise of one to three points.

On the 18th of this month the American Ice Company will be formally authorized to issue $2,000,000 general 5-year 5 per cent. convertible bonds, and a like amount of 7 per cent. non-cumulative first preferred stock to provide for the conversion of the bonds. The bonds will be offered for subscription at 88 and the stock at par. The bonds have already been underwritten by a syndicate consisting of W. A. Tucker, G. L. Boissevain and R. Q. Brown. Thus the most perplexing problem with which the American Ice Company has had to contend will be solved. The company will liquidate its floating debt and be in possession of a substantial working capital. The stock will be issued as the conversion privilege on the bonds requires.

Buying of Reading is very confident. One rumor in the street is that Reading is to be absorbed by Western Maryland, which really a huge coal company. This report is not believed by many persons, because it would seem to be in violation of the Sherman law. However, the Reading is already so deep in violation of that law, should it be proved constitutional that the addition of one more violation will be of no importance. Reading still keeps to do some tremendous business anyhow, should the law be upheld, and it might as well take care of Western Maryland at the same time. Nothing official can be had in regard to this.

LIGHT MARKET AT OPENING

The narrowness that reigned in the New York market was reflected in the dealings of the local exchange to-day. Trading was light in volume, with prices holding well except in the cases of Isle Royale and East Butte. These two stocks were the features.

When the market opened there was nothing to denote that a movement of any sort either way was one in Isle Royale, but a few minutes after the opening the stock was lifted by fractions until more the first half hour it had risen to 29¾, from 29. There was a slight slipping off after East Butte was the other feature. The price of the latter advanced to 12¾ from an opening of 11¾, and held steadily at that price.

THE BARRIER

A Romance of the Klondike. The Story of a Kentucky Soldier's Love for a Daughter of the North.

BY REX BEACH AUTHOR OF "THE SPOILERS."

Copyright, 1906, Harper & Bro.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued

"My dear one," he breathed, "you must listen to me. You have nothing to fear, for I love you—love you—love you! You were made for me. You'll be my wife. Yes; you'll be married on Sunday, but to me, not to Polson or any other man!"

Did she hear aright? Was he, her soldier lover, asking her, the Indian girl——

"You do love me, don't you?" he pleaded. But still she could not speak, and he tried to read the answer in her swimming eyes.

"You mean—you want to—marry me?" she murmured, at last, hesitating shyly at the word that had come to play so momentous a part in her little world.

"Indeed I do!" he declared, with emphasis. "In spite of everything, anything, nothing else matters."

"Nothing?"

"Nothing! I'll quit the army. I'll give up the Service, and my people, too. I'll put everything back of me, and we'll start out anew—just you and I."

"Wait a moment," she said, retreating a little from his eager, out-stretched arms. "Why do you need to do all that?"

"Now you're mine, and I'll be good as done. You wouldn't understand——"

"But I think I do understand now. Do I really mean all that to you?"

"Yes, and more!"

"Listen to me," said the girl, quietly. "I want you to talk wisely so I may not misunderstand. If you—marry me, must you forego all those privileges you speak of—your profession, your family, your future?"

"Don't let's talk about it, Necia; I've got you, and——"

"Please answer me," she urged. "I thought I understood, but I'm afraid I don't. I thought it was my being a breed that stood in the way——"

"There's nothing in the way——"

"—that I wasn't good enough. I knew I could overcome that; I knew I could make myself grow to your level, but I didn't think my blood would flatter you and make this difference. I suppose I am putting it awkwardly, because I'm not sure that I quite understand it myself yet. Things seem different now, somehow, than they did before."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed the soldier. "If they don't bother me, Necia, why should you worry?"

"Would you really have to give up your family—your sisters? Would those people you are so proud of and who are on proud of you—would they cut you off?"

"There is no question of cutting off. I have no inheritance coming; I don't want any. I don't want anything except you, dear."

"Won't you tell me?" she persisted. "You see, I am dull at these things."

"Well, what if they do? We can be wedded. You more than make it up to me—you outweigh a thousand families."

"And would your marriage to a——a—to me destroy your army career?"

"Well, it will really be much easier for both of us if I resign from the service," he finally admitted. "In fact, I've decided to do it anyway."

"No, no! You mustn't do that. To-night you think I am worth the price, but a day will come——"

He leaned forward and caught her hands in his.

"Meade, I can't let you do it."

"I'd like to see you help yourself," he said, laughingly.

"I can and I will. You must not marry me, Meade—it's not right. What did your father's wedding mean, and logan to shiver. To think of losing him now, after he had come to her freely—it would be very hard.

But to her, too, there had come the revelation that love means sacrifice, and she knew now that she loved her soldier too well to let her shadow darken his bright future, too well to ruin him.

"It will be over before you know it," she heard him saying, in a fine attempt at levity. "Father Bernum is an expert, and the operation won't occupy him ten minutes."

"Meade, you must listen to me now," she said, so earnestly that it sobered him. "Do you think a girl could be happy if she knew a good man had spoiled his life for her? I would rather die now than let you do such a thing. I couldn't bear to see myself a drag on you. Oh, I know it would be wonderful, this happiness of ours for a time, and then——

She was finding it more and more difficult to continue. "A prisoner grows to hate the chains that bind him, when the day came for you, I should hate myself. No, no! Believe me, it can't be. You're not of my people, and I'm not of yours."

At that moment they heard the voice of the trader and his squaw outside, approaching the house. The girl's breath caught in her throat. She flung herself recklessly upon her lover's breast and threw her arms around his neck in an agony of farewell.

"Meade Meade! my soldier!" she sobbed. "Give me good-by for the last time!"

"No," he said, roughly.

But she dragged his face down to her burning lips.

"Now you must go," she said, tearing herself away, "and, for my sake, don't see me again."

"I will! I will! I'll ask your father for you to-night."

"No, no! Don't, please don't! Wait till—till to-morrow—till I say the word! Promise me! On your honor, promise!"

Her eyes held such a painful entreaty that he nodded acquiescence as the door opened and her father and Alluna entered.

CHAPTER XIII.

Stark Takes a Hand in the Game.

THE old man greeted the lieutenant affably, but as his glance fell on his daughter he stopped stock-still on the threshold.

"I told you never to wear that dress again," he said, in a dry, harsh voice.

The girl made no answer, for her heart was breaking, but turned and went into her room. Burrell had no irresolute desire to tell Gale that he wanted his daughter for his wife: it would be an unwonted pleasure to startle this sour-eyed old man and the shawled and shambling mummy of red, with the unwinking eyes that always reminded him of two serpents' cherries; but he had given Necia his promise. So he descended to the exchange of ordinary topics, and inquired the news of the creek.

"Nevis's ground is getting better every hour," the trader said. "Yesterday they found a sixty-dollar pan."

"Have you struck pay on yours?"

"No, Polson and I seem to hold bad hands. Some of his laymen are quitting work. They've crossed in half a dozen places and can't find a color."

"But surely they haven't fully prospected his claims yet; there must be some good reason for it. Where's Polson, where, mustn't there?"

"He looks like he had drawn three blanks," said Gale, "although we can't tell for sure. They're breaking meat as we speak, too; but I've got a new hunch, and I'm running up a cross-cut to bed-rock along the old rim. I've got twenty men at work, and I'll know before long. You heard about Bonanza, of course?"

"Yes; the usual story—the lad men get the good mines, and the good ones get the hungry spots. Well, I might have been one of the unfortunates if I had staked for myself; but I hardly think so, I'm pretty lucky." He laughingly bade them good-night, content with his allowed and at peace with the world.

Gale went to Necia's door and called her, but when she appeared he was unprepared for the tragic figure which she greeted him.

"Daughter," he said, "don't feel bad over what I said. I didn't mean to be cross with you, but—I don't like that dress."

"Were you cross with me, daddy?" she said, dully. "I didn't hear. What did you say?"

He looked at her in amazement. "Necia, little girl, what is the trouble?"

She was staring past him, and her fingers were fumbling helplessly with the lace of her gown, but she began to show signs of collapse.

"I sent him away—I—gave him up, when he wanted me—wanted me to wed. Oh, daddy! he wants to marry me—and I sent him away."

Alluna uttered a short, satisfied exclamation, and, looking at Gale meaningly, said:

"He is good. It is good. He is a stranger."

But the man disregarded her interruption.

"He asked you to marry him in—in spite of who you are and—and——"

"Yes; he is ready to give up his ambition, his army life—Oh, I could not ask everything, for me—to sacrifice it all; and so, of course, I couldn't do it." She spoke simply, as if her father would agree. He understood and agreed, but his face, while in her voice was a note of inevitable resignation.

"You see, I never understood what my love would mean to him until to-night. I've been selfish and thoughtless, I guess. I just wanted him, and wanted him to take me; but now that I've got a mine, I'm him more than I thought. He is so dear to me that I can't drag him down—I can't—I can't."

She went to the open door and stood leaning against the casing, facing the cool outer darkness, her face hidden from him, her form sagging wearily, as if the struggle had sapped her whole strength.

Allona crept to the trader and looked up at him eagerly, whispering:

"This will end in a little while, John. She is young. She can go back to the Mission to-morrow. She will soon forget."

"Forget! Do you think she can forget?"

"Any woman can forget. Only men remember."

"It is the red blood in you—lying. You know you lie."

"It is to save your life," she said.

"I know; but it's no use." To Necia he said: "You needn't worry, little daughter. But her eyes were dead. "You needn't give him up. I say—this will end all right."

Seeing that she gave no sign of heeding, he stepped closer, and swung her around till she faced him.

"Can't you trust me this one time? You always have before, Necia. I say he'll marry you, and it will all come out right."

She raised her hopeless eyes and strove dumbly to meet his, then, falling, broke away, and turned back to the door. "I knew you couldn't understand. I—I—oh, God, I love him so!"

To Be Continued To-morrow.

ASKS LEAVE TO INCREASE STOCK

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Application was made to the Public Service Commission, second district, to-day by the Fitchburg Railroad Company for permission to increase its capital stock by 5,000 shares of first value at par.

The proceeds are to be used to pay $720,057.32 to the Boston & Maine for improvements and betterments. The details of the expenditures include $65,000 for the Conway Electric Street railway in Massachusetts and a note of that company amounting to $27,000.

President Tuttle of the Boston & Maine certifies to the commission that he believes a price of not less than $120 a share should be realized. The Massachusetts Railroad Commission has approved the issue.

64 IN FIGHT FOR MISER'S RICHES

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 10.—The Probate Court has decided that Gardiner C. Talmadge had sixty-four heirs at the hearing caused by a fight for the possession of the estate of about $100,000 left by one of Newport's most eccentric citizens. He was called a miser and lived in squalor in a hovel where he hid wealth under his bed and floors.

Talmadge lived in a little one-story house at No. 8 Mann avenue and just before he died he said he wished he could pile all his money on the floor beside his cot and set fire to it. He said he wanted his wealth to die with him. One of his final sorrows was that he had paid $10 for a suit of clothes when he could have bought another "just as good" for $5.

CHARGE THEFT FROM LETTER

Charged with embezzling a draft for $652 from a letter, John H. Russell, a barber, of No. 782 Tremont street, was arrested by Postoffice Inspector Kent to-day and arraigned before the United States commissioner.

The letter was addressed to J. Henry Russell, No. 818 Tremont street. As no person of that name lived at that address, the letter was turned over to Russell, the barber.

It is alleged that yesterday Russell cashed the draft and also sold his place of business. He had $535 with him when he was arrested at his room at No. 92 Worcester street.

HISGEN BILL GETS HEARING

The Hisgen anti-discrimination bill will be given a public hearing to-day, before the Joint Judiciary Committee of the Legislature at Conference Hall, No. 24 Washington street.

The bill is filed by Thomas L. Hisgen of West Springfield, Independence Party candidate for President of the United States last Fall.

It provides that corporations may not maintain a lower price for commodities in one section than in another in order to drive out competition. In Springfield, where Mr. Hisgen conducts a retail and business, oil retails for from four to five cents a gallon less than in Boston where there is no competition. In other words, Boston pays the freight on Springfield's oil. Last year this bill passed the House but was buried in the senate.

PAPER STRIKES COST $63,000

The second day of the convention of the International Brotherhood of Papermakers, at Xaonti Hall, No. 724 Washington street, was devoted to the reports of officers. President J. T. Carey urged more harmonious action by the members of the various affiliated unions and touched on the recent decision of Judge Wright, sentencing President Gompers, Vice-President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison to jail, and urged the delegates to fight for freedom of speech and press.

First Vice-President M. J. Burns of Tonawanda, N. Y., member of St. George Local No. 17, and Second Vice-President John Durrah of Troy, N. Y., Local No. 177, indorsed the views of the President.

Walk to Your Meals Like a Man

Eat What You Will and Learn to Enjoy Food and to Digest It.

HERE'S THE SECRET, FREE.

Make up your mind after reading this that you will eat the next meal hold no terrors for you.

You can enjoy it. You can digest it. All that is needed is to give nature the juices she lacks, to give the stomach a chance to remove the terrible irritating acids, alkalies and gases which turn food and nourishment into gas and decomposition.

When a system is run down and depleted it needs building up. Ashes won't rekindle a fire and worn out digestive fluids will not take proper juices from food no matter how good the food is.

Is this common sense? Men spend years and even life experimenting on the human system, what it lacks in disease and what it needs in perfection. This knowledge is known to every physician, or should be. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are compressed natural vegetable and fruit essences which, when mixed with the saliva of the mouth, go into the stomach capable of digesting a full meal, and they digest it to the uttermost shred. Then such a meal does a man good and it gives to him the means to overcome stomach troubles. Forty thousand physicians use these tablets and charge you for writing a testimonial of their merit which they call a prescription. Any druggist in America or Canada will sell you a box for 50c. Think of it. Every druggist carries them. Here's common sense again. Don't this tell you there's merit? Go to your druggist today, buy a package and walk up to your meals knowing that they will not cause you pain. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Sour Stomach is quickly relieved by Dyspeptets. Digested tablets, 10c. Remember the name, Dyspeptets.

Its cures of scrofula, eczema, eruptions, catarrh, rheumatism, anemia, nervousness, tir ired feeling, dyspepsia, loss of appetite and general debility, are in may instances so remarkable as to surprise physicians, nurses, patients and all others having knowledge of them.

WHAT IS MECHANO-THERAPY?

Mechano-Therapy is the art, or science, of treating disease without drugs. It is similar to Osteopathy, but far superior, being the latest, up-to-date method of treating disease by the Natural Method. It heals as Nature heals—in accordance with Nature's laws.

The Mechano-Therapist is a drugless physician and a bloodless surgeon. His medicines are not drugs, but scientific combinations of food, circumstance, idea, water and motion. His instruments are not knives and saws, but his own deft hands and the vital processes of the body itself, the circulation, respiration, secretion, etc., which he manipulates. The Mechano-Therapist is skilled in compelling the body TO DO ITS OWN HEALING with its own forces, rather than with poisonous drugs of the old practitioner.

More than this we have taught hundreds of men and women who were formerly clerks in dry-goods stores, which are overcrowded—insurance agents—railway employes—in fact, of nearly every occupation under the sun, many of seventy years who felt discouraged and hopeless—young men of twenty years, who never had a day's business experience—salaried men, who could see nothing in the future but to become cloistered—laboring men, who never realized that they had within themselves the ability to better their conditions.

We have taken these men, and women, too, and pointed out the way to a higher, more useful life, elevated them financially, placed them in a position to earn more money—MUCH MORE MONEY—than they could earn in any other way.

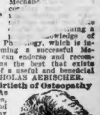
Your College the Best

Dear Doctor: I received your letter of congratulation and my diploma last Saturday, and in return extend to you my heartfelt appreciation for the valuable knowledge I have gained from [illegible] course of Mechano-Therapy. [illegible] using a [illegible] system of human Anatomy and Physiology, which is indispensable to becoming a successful Mechano-Therapist, and cheerfully and heartily recommend your college to any one that strives for the attainment of a useful and beneficial profession. NICHOLAS ALEXIEICHER.

Cost Only One-Thirtieth of Osteopathy



Dear Doctor: As one of your graduates, I can scarcely find words to express my satisfaction with the profession of Mechano-Therapy. The course as taught by it is put [illegible] college is so simple, so easily understood, that the lessons only require such a small portion of one's spare time, that I was not surprised to have such a flourishing practice [illegible] time.

It only took me six months to get my diploma in Mechano-Therapy, and the entire cost was only about one-thirtieth of the time and money required in the profession of Mechano-Therapy. I have never found the slightest difficulty in getting all the work that I cared to do. It is hard for me to understand why any man or woman will spend two to five years in the study of law, dentistry, osteopathy, or, in fact, almost any profession, when they can learn Mechano-Therapy in six months without leaving their own homes. Yours gratefully,

Best Paying Profession

Dear Doctor: The good you have done me through your instructions have been far beyond my expectations. I bless the day that I enrolled as one of your students. Mechano-Therapy is the best paying, up-to-date profession I know of, and if any young or middle-aged man or woman is looking for a profession that will never fail, why not choose one that is up-to-date in every respect. One that is remunerative from the start. One that is practical in every way. One that is not built on theory. One that is progressive. One that is fascinating. One that will make you prosperous while you are making others happy. One where you will be appreciated for what you are worth. I can heartily recommend Mechano-Therapy to all who want a fine profession.

Dear Doctor: It is a pleasure to me to heartily endorse your college, and especially to those who contemplate a course in drugless healing. Prominent Optician Endorses Mechano-Therapy.

Dear Doctor: I have taken your course and feel very much pleased, and I cannot say too much in praise of your college.

I have practiced optics for the past ten years, and find that I have lost half of that time without Mechano-Therapy. Optics goes hand in hand with my profession as a side line. NANCY HANKS TO BE "AT HOME" ON LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

OWEN MORAN TOO MUCH FOR MATTY BALDWI

BALDWIN EASY FOR BRITON

Fighting as he did against Abe Attell for the featherweight championship obtaining an even break, Owen Moran, the plucky little Englishman now Matty Baldwin's opponent for a chance at that title, so the likely story has it, had the Sunday fight newspaper in a frenzy in their favorite argument of the Armory A. C.

The Englishman was now matched to trade Baldwin an even draw, but won by a margin so wide that he made the bout too one-sided to hold the interest.

The ring work of the blocky foreigner convinced the onlookers that when the match between him and Driscoll comes off over in "dear old Limerick" in the Spring it will be a battle which will thrill the whole British sports by storm.

There was much similarity in Moran's action that his native rival, Driscoll displayed against Baldwin. He was there with all the classy footwork and flashy hitting and showed even better at times the infighting style of victory swapping making even Baldwin look like a second string, when it came to slipping in hot shot with the free hand.

Moran Was a Live Wire.

Moran had been going steadily and he was the busiest fighter seen in the ring here in many a day. He kept boxing around Matty, shooting over his left to the head bocking and jabbing, and in the clinches did some live wire hitting, landing with double punches, while Baldwin was groping around to grasp his arms.

Once Moran got into his stride he completely outclassed Baldwin, who had a lot of trouble trying to land a solid punch, while his foe was shifting him with snappy jabs and worrying Matty in the clinches by jamming his fists against his head and body.

The Charlestown boy was handicapped after the third round, as Moran closed his right eye with a left hook and with half his vision gone Matty couldn't keep track of all the scallops that were coming his way and had his troubles trying to locate the slippery Britisher, who was constantly shifting out of his reach.

Baldwin Strong at Start.

Baldwin made quite a good appearance in the first round that his friends got the impression that he was going to cause an upset for the betting was two to one against him, but after his optic was put in mourning his work fell off, while Moran increased his lead in every round going to the finish.

Like the game little battler he is Baldwin never stopped from carrying the fight. Though beaten he kept stepping in trying to reach the phantom Moran, who gauged distance perfectly, and was a sure marksman, beating Matty to his punches or sidestepping one in while by a similar movement of his head he made Matty miss often.

It was one of the greatest exhibitions of generalship ever seen on the boards, and Moran was on deck with his brains working in unison with his hands and feet. He seemed to know that he was master of his plucky foe and wore a derisive expression, while Matty vainly made wild efforts to connect with him as he pulled back out of range or ducked low to the clouts to Matty's puffed up face or sturdy framework.

Matty started out valiantly, but his steam soon oozed out and Moran appeared to gather speed as the encounter got warmer and was moving like Derby winner when the bell rung.

Matty Lost His Speed.

Waile Baldwin was fighting against a furious hope, gradually falling off in his speed, there was never a moment that his gritty boy didn't offer to lead off with something even when battered and beaten from the rapping punches which Moran sent over in bunches.

He struggled manfully to hold Moran in check, but was unable to cope with the superior marksmanship and cleverness of his rival.

Moran made good his assertion that when he came back to the Hub to fight for the second time he would show the fans something of his real form, for when he fought Nell he claimed he was out of condition. The difference was apparent, for he never looked and had full use of all his fighting equipment.

The State of Little Rhody made good in the preliminary part of the card. Eddie Moore's two champions from Pawtucket captured well-served wins. Bobby Finke was opposed to Young Nixon of Cambridge in the first bout and won by a shade after the fourth round. Nixon was having all the best of it up to that time, but tired and the slumber pill, and Finkie was wobbly at the finish, but got over on body work on the chops, and the lights went out for Nixon.

Kid Manning Won.

Kid Manning was the other Pawtucket boy who had a head liner to meet in Eddie Johnson of New York, who had not all the backing, as the talent could not see Manning, who was just itching for trouble. Neither boy disappointed the crowd up, and were making things hum in short order.

Manning's greater strength only began to assert itself, and he had Johnson doing all the hugging on the round route route. Only Johnson's gameness rolled him through the eight rounds, and he was no easy race record, but the Directum Kelly colt has been timed a mile in 2:16¼.

SELLING NOTED FARM.

News comes from California that the famous Norwood Stock Farm, owned by the late Martin Carter, is to be closed out, and that it will be sold at a complete disposal of all of the trotting stock during the month. At the head of the stud is the famous stallion Directum Kelly, with a mark in 2:10, and the dams of four in that list, now twenty-one years old.

FIRST PHOTOGRAPH PUBLISHED HERE OF JOHNSON-BURNS FIGHT IN AUSTRALIA

This picture shows the climax of the great battle in Australia for the world's heavyweight honors. Burns is seen sitting on the floor in a dazed and helpless condition, while the burly negro, Johnson, stands ready to deal another knock-down blow. The photo was snapped just before the police interfered and put a stop to the contest. The photograph also gives an idea of the size of the crowd, which numbered 18,000 spectators, a record attendance at a prize fight. The sale of seats brought in $120,000, by far the greatest sum ever realized on a contest in the ring. It was a holiday, and the fight was witnessed by hundreds of the most prominent men in Australia.

DRISCOLL IS THE FAVORITE

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Jem Driscoll will have one of the hardest fights of his career, by the way, when he meets Leach Cross in a ten-round mill at 125 pounds, weight at 5 o'clock in the Fairmont A. C. ring tonight. But the wise men were betting 7 to 5 that Driscoll would defeat Cross and 2 to 1 that Cross would not score a knockout.

Cross said that he intended to force the issue from the first tap of the gong and he believed he was fast enough to land a sloop wallop on Driscoll's jaw. Cross argues that he is a faster boxer than Martin and that he will therefore get to Driscoll with enough steam behind his punches to land to bother the lad hard.

"If he runs into one of Cross's right-hand swings," said a Cross camp follower, "Driscoll will be put away for keeps." But Driscoll is no mean like getting lighting on his feet that the ring sharps do not believe Cross will be able to hit him on a vital spot, while they also predict that the Driscoll left jab to Cross's eyebrow in Driscoll can give ten pounds and a beating to Cross and still be licked in a walk. If Cross beats the Englishman it will not in the least detract from the latter's reputation as a featherweight nor will it lessen the interest in his coming battle with Attell.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Catcher Schlei has written Manager McGraw of the Giants that he is pleased to play in New York. The same old gag.

When McGraw released Needham he made a clean-up of his veteran backstops. He starts the season with a new crop.

Roger Bresnahan has not been a ragged of outfielders. He has Evers, Ellis, Devore, Meloretzky, Saier and Wilson to select from.

A dispatch says Bill Burns will pitch for the Braves. Bill is all right in his way, but such pastimes—Waddell, Bailey, Graham and Burns?

Charles Dean will sign with the opposition house when Mike Donlin strikes Philadelphia this week. Dean is the biggest fish the league has.

Fred Clarke of the Pittsburg Pirates is after Bobby Byrne, President Ebbets and Roger Bresnahan are now considering Clarke's offer, and there is a good chance of it going through.

All there is for Hal Chase to do now is to pay his fine of $250 and then he can go back to first standing as any other ball player in the country, the latest ruling to the effect that Chase is a good pitcher.

Harry Coveleski, the pitcher traded to Boston by the New York Giants, returned his contract unsigned to the Boston Club. He says that he will join the "Hedleon" Club he will not play for the same money.

Harry Howell is studying grand opera. Probably he is practicing it in the ninth inning of a game. There is a chance to get off a few high notes of the Verdi-Caruso pattern before the umpire can get the notes in all about.

The pitching "find" coach system in Eastern colleges was started by the appearance of Ray Caldwell at Yale and "Big Ed" Walsh at Holy Cross. Harvard, every year or so some one starts a row with baseball writers, writing on the subject of breeding, says: The quality of the average American college baseball player, in point of endurance as needed here, but his legs are most improved upon."

No member of the Cotton States Baseball League Boston has been more willing to tackle the best of the league's pitchers than Second Baseman Frank Hall. He made much success against the pick.

Charlie Bell, the veteran umpire, was by Abbey & Imbrie, the American Record for the age of 2.29 at a meeting held in November. The was finally beaten a head by an aged horse in another race.

DORANDO EATER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Dorando Pietri, the Italian Marathoner, is a hungry cuss. He has an appetite that would tend to add ten pounds a week to any ordinary man, but not so with Dorando.

He has his managers, Harry Pollok and Pat Powers, guessing all the time about his board bills. The other night his check for dinner was only $0.60.

MARATHON RUN AT PROVIDENCE

Through the efforts of several old athletes a new amateur athletic club has sprung up in Providence which promises to develop into quite an organization.

It will be called the Providence Athletic Club, and the first big event comes on Washington's Birthday, when an eight mile cross-country run will be held.

Dr. A. C. W. Bowen, the former University of Pennsylvania long-distance runner, is one of the prime movers in the club, and has a lot of prominent business men associated with him.

While the run on Washington's Birthday will be the big event of the day, there will be another Marathon, and every provision will be made to make the event a success. The first prize is valued at $35, and there are four others, graded down to $10. Besides, silver medals will be given the men to run to finish.

February 18 with William C. Brand, Providence Athletic Club.

An Eastern horseman tells me the birthplace of Bill McKinnon, the Roxbury slugger! W. R.

He was born at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, twenty-two years ago.

John L. Sullivan:

Dear Sir—Please tell me if ever in your fighting career you got a decision over Jack Dempsey? Concord, N. H. A. E. J.

I have answered this question about a million times. No, I never did.

John L. Sullivan:

Dear Sir—Did Jeffries ever fight with Corbett? If so, how many times? Bath, Me. A. E. J.

They fought twice, Jeffries winning both times.

John L. Sullivan:

Dear Sir—Please tell me if Fred Bradley, the Roxbury heavyweight, and Bill McKinnon ever fought? If so, who won? Boston. W. J. K.

They met as amateurs and Bradley won.

John L. Sullivan's Column

Harry Pulham ought to ignore Charlie Murphy entirely. There is little sense in the president of the National League getting into an argument with the head of the Chicago National club. White, of course, Pulham will win the argument, but effort isn't worth the powder.

Murphy's methods are discredited all over the circuit, but nowhere more than in his own town, where Comiskey, the "Old Roman," has the call in popularity. Murphy's line is to bust into every argument, dictate terms like the manager of a lightweight champion fighter and bluff and con his way along under the impression that he is fooling everybody.

His method is to be "theatrical" in every move to fool the public in his schemes. He has made several attempts to get his fellow magnates in the National League to fall in line for fancy prices for some of his players—$50,000 for Chance, $250,000 for Tinker—Speed Brown and so on. "Of course, you know, I wouldn't sell them," he says in one of his other club owners, "but it will give us both a lot of publicity." He cannot understand why the other magnates do not fall for this kind of guff.

That's the kind of a man Murphy is, and I am surprised that Harry Pulham allows himself to be drawn in as an argument with the four-flushing owner of the Cubs. Harry is too good a baseball man, there is no way of getting rid of him that I can see, so I suppose we will have to put up with him.

Comiskey has Murphy beaten to a frazzle in Chicago, and if it were not for the fact that Chance and the other players have brought three National League pennants and two world's championships to the West Side Park, nobody would ever hear of Murphy.

I've got a hunch that the Boston Americans are going to get the greatest results out of their Spring training of any team in the circuit. I'll tell you why.

Of course, you all know the Red Sox are going to Hot Springs to start the ball a-rolling, and a better spot could not have been picked out. Well, the Detroit Tigers, who for two years copped the pennant, have used the place for a training ground, and wanted to go there again, but President John T. Taylor beat them to it by securing the only available grounds for Spring practice in the city.

The Tigers simply could get away with the pennant by spending a few days at the Springs; there should be something doing when the race is on for the Red Box.

Then, too, Clarke and the Pirates drew to Hot Springs year in and year out? The boys used leader of the Pirates knows a good training ground, and his team is always in the thing at the right every year.

There's nothing like the baths down there for the athlete. They put the players in tip-top form for the season, and before them and there isn't any danger of disease. It is the course of baths is all laid out.

PFEFFER LAUDS JOHN CLARKSON

John Clarkson never had a superior as a pitcher and never will," said Fred Pfeffer, the old baseball star, recently in discussing Captain Anson, the other day. "The Rube Waddells, the Mordecai Browns, the Ed Walshes and the Christy Mathewsons may come and go and they may be old John, but none of them will ever stand as his superior. I stood behind him day in and day out and watched his magnificent control, as confident of success, especially in tight places, as I would have been with the United States army behind me. That was Clarkson's long suit. He was master of control. I believe he could put a ball where he wanted it nine times out of ten. He had everything any pitcher ever had and a little. His speed was something terrific and he could throw any curve. However, his favorite ball was a drop something like the spitball of to-day, although he delivered it without the ointment necessary nowadays.

"I can never remember that in his day Clarkson had to face that wonderful bunch of hitters of the old Detroit team, when Brouthers, Thompson, Rowe, Ed Hanlon, Hardy Richardson, Jim White, Dunlap and George Wood were the crack set sluggers on the diamond. Clarkson was a Rube Waddle. They seldom won a game from him. If I remember rightly John got not more than two or three runs, as myriads of grateful patrons will testify. He used to say that if Clarkson and Kelly, who were the famous battery in 1886, were alive to-day $50,000 would not buy their releases."

SWISS CHAMP AT GOTCH

LONDON, Feb. 10.—John Lemm, the Swiss wrestler who has just defeated Cornelius O'Kelly, winner of the heavyweight competitions at the Olympic games last year, is anxious to meet Gotch.

He says that he believes he could beat either Gotch or Hackenschmidt, but as it doesn't seem possible to get the latter to wrestle anybody likely to give him a close contest, he is going to confine himself to arranging a meeting with the American.

Lemm was the winner of the big international wrestling tourney held in London last year.

TWO MUTES IN BIG LEAGUE.

"Dummy" Taylor and "Dummy" Hoy are the only two mutes who have made good in baseball. Taylor, pitching for New York, now with Cleveland in 1902, but he was lonesome and jumped to New York, where there was a big colony of mutes. When with Cleveland he was very popular with his fellow-players, and whenever he crossed the circuit mutes would call at his hotel and fan with him via their fingers.

CLARKSON WAS A WONDER.

John Clarkson's pitching accuracy was wonderful. Before play began one day at Chicago a player stuck up his bat in the dirt back of the plate and offered to bet any New York player $50 that Clarkson could hit it with a pitched ball on the first trial. The bet was snapped up like a shot, and "Handsome John," going into the box, toppled over the bat on the first attempt.

"Set it up again!" said Clarkson. Somebody did, and again Clarkson's aim was accurate. Three times more was this repeated, and each time the bat was sent spinning, the ball striking it fairly.

NANCY HANKS WILL RECEIVE

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 10.—The announcement last week by H. H. Wilson, secretary of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, that two handicap races, one for trotters and one for pacers, would be given at the next October meeting, has met with the approval of all the horsemen now at the track, and no trouble is anticipated by Secretary Wilson in getting sufficient entries to fill both big events.

These two events will in a measure revive long distance trotting races, and while old-time horsemen cannot recall that more than three races of greater distance than a mile ever were trotted in Kentucky, all remember the great interest taken in those races and look for the handicap method to result in even greater interest than did the old time long distance events for one and one-half and two miles, when all of the horses started at the same point, as they do now in mile events.

"Nancy Hanks at Home, 2 P. M. to 5 P. M., February 12, 1909, Hamburg Place," is a copy of an announcement sent out last week by John E. Madden, who has planned a unique entertainment in honor of a horse. The famous mare was named in honor of the mother of Abraham Lincoln, and the reception to be given in her honor will be on the same day and at the same hour that the 100th anniversary of Lincoln is celebrated at the Lincoln birthplace in Hardin county, Kentucky.

The barn in which Nancy Hanks holds forth will be decorated to gay colors. The noted matron will wear a collar of roses and during the reception she will receive visitors, each of whom will be permitted to pat her on the head, rub her nose and feed her fruit, candy and lumps of sugar, which will be provided for the occasion. Not only will the visitors be permitted to rub elbows, so to speak, with Nancy Hanks and her daughters and grandson, but all of the other horses of the farm, trotters and thoroughbreds, will pass through the receiving line. In addition invitations have been sent to Peter the Great, J. J. Audubon, Crystallion Onward, Axtellion and other noted stallions at the Patchen Wilkes Farm, just across the road, asking for their presence on this historic occasion.

SPORTING MISCELLANY

MONTREAL—Babe Cullen of New York was put to sleep by Billie Allen in ten rounds.

HARRISBURG—Jack Reed of Toledo was knocked out by Ed Casey of Villanova in the sixth round.

NEW ORLEANS—Young Ahearn and Jack Hedger fought ten rounds to a draw at the Long Acre Club.

ROLLER POLO RESULTS At Pawtucket—Providence, 6; Pawtucket, 2. At Providence—New Bedford, 5; Providence, 4.

PITTSBURG—Clarence Hamilton of Boston broke the world's record for one mile on roller skates under bell sight by 3. Morris Berlin of Hamilton reduced Mason's record of 3m. 49 3-5s. to 3m. 42 2-5s.

PHILADELPHIA—Young Britt of Baltimore and Young Corbett of Philadelphia fought at the Olympic A. C. Feb. 8. Referee Billy Gray of Baltimore, and Young O'Donnell was substituted. The latter put up a fine fight and the referee said he was entitled to a draw.

PITTSBURG—Young Corbett was beaten in six rounds by Mull Hoover. Had a decision been permitted under the rules Hoover would certainly have gotten it, as Corbett was fat and on the defensive all the time. Hoover was the aggressor from fight Corbett to a finish or twenty rounds is good enough. Corbett will be seen here next week in Pittsburg in private. Corbett has not decided what he will do.

Captain Hamilton Fish of the Harvard football team said with regard to the report that Coach Warner, coach of the Carlisle Indian School, to Dickinson, Trinity, Lafayette and Lehigh, "Opinion was that Fall River was the best place to get at and the game with Carlisle next Fall. We have the open date October 23 and November 13, and three teams to pick from—Dartmouth, Brown and Carlisle. We have not yet made our choice."

DE ORO MEETS LEON TO-NIGHT

There is great interest among the local billiard players as to the outcome of the match between De Oro and Leon that begins to-night in New York at three cushions. It is for 150 points in blocks of fifty each night.

It is known there is hard feelings between the two cracks. The match is the outcome of talk made for some time as to who was the better. Each have backed themselves to the limit, as well as their friends.

An admirer of Leon says that the Cuban will bite the dust to a certainty. De Oro may get a lead of twenty-five in this night's play, but Leon is a bulldog for courage, making a lead like that only causing him to dig the harder. From accounts both men intend to worry each other to the limit.

Thomas Hueston, pool champion and former holder of the three-cushion billiard title, will be on hand to see De Oro and Leon play, and is to challenge the winner. Joe Charon is another of the same mind. In return, De Oro, if he defeats Leon, will stick in a challenge against Hueston for the pool title.

TOP BILLIARD PLAYERS MEET

The class "A" billiard tournament for the amateur championship of New England at the Hub Billiard Rooms is drawing to a close, three of the men having played all their games. Engstrom, Parker and Arthur are left to finish. Six more games are to be played, beginning to-night. Following is the standing of the players:

	Games			High
	Won.	Lost.	Ave.	run
Engstrom	6	0	6.42-49	53
Parker	4	2	5.42-49	51
Arthur	3	3	5.42-49	37
Wheelock	2	5	5.42-49	37
Warren	1	5	4.15-49	32
Van Dyke	1	5	4.39-50	38

To-night Engstrom will meet Parker.

BOWLING ALLEY GOSSIP

While losing three out of four points to Everett, yet Winthrop, through having played a game more, still retains the lead in the Elks by a close margin.

With four of the Bostons having averages of over 100 for the season and the fifth within a fraction of that figure, it must be noted the cracks of the City League got settled in one corner.

Eddie Green is one of the most consistent bowlers in Greater Boston. Match following match he rolls close to the 100 mark, and every now and then makes close upon it. No wonder he is called the "Medford strong boy."

Now that Tenny Burns of the Chelsea Elks will wind up the season on his own alleys he counts on getting after Harry O'Brien for the high average prize. As it stands now the latter has 96 to 95 for the Chelsea crack.

It was expected when Lynn took the two cracks of the City League, Galway and Holmes, there would be some tall stepping in the Immortal match, but Galway was confronted with 268, while Holmes was in the 250 class.

These collegiate rubber balls were invented by a Lynn man named Willis. Fred Williams was the first one in this city to give them a trial. He thinks that in a few years no other kind will be seen on the alleys.

Winthrop will have to keep stepping the next few weeks to be in the hunt in the Elks for next Monday is scheduled Medford, then in succession comes Lynn, Waltham and Revere. This means only one soft game the remaining of the season for the team.

Malden now leads the second division of the Elks, and if they can keep their present pace the leaders will have no better to stand in their path, one of their best men, is sick at present, but when he returns to the game then it will look trouble for the opposition, sure.

When the Newspaper League started there were some who were afraid the Transcript five would hardly be strong enough for the other fives. However, the dope was a bad one, as the team has a team lead and to date has shown unexpected strength, knowledge in the fine points of getting pins than any team in the league.

HARD SCHEDULE BOOKED.

The Winthrop Yacht Club basketball team has arranged a hard schedule for this month, including all the best teams in their weight, to be played at home, as follows: February 15, Penno Five and Boylston A. A.; February 22, Brevoort Five and West Roxbury A. A.; February 26, Page Clinic and Enterprise Five.

UPTON BEATS HOOD.

Bob Upton of Salem defeated Joe Hood at Miah Murray's in the second block of 250 balls by a score of 134 to 96. The third and last block will be played to-night.

BILLIARDS AND POOL NOTES

Albert G. Cutler, will arrive in Boston next Monday and meet the best players here. He is expecting for the world's championship tournament to be held in New York in March. Mr. Cutler will play afternoons and evenings.

The tournaments held at the Hub billiard parlors and exhibition of Engstrom, recently at the Imperial are wonderful encomiums for the game. Billiards takes a world of admirers, and it is up to the room keepers to give their patrons a show at demonstrating their skill in friendly contests, or in having experts show them in entertaining the balk line for the interest edification.

Eddie Hood has made remarkable improvement in his game the past few months. There is nothing like constant application.

An attempt has been made in forming a Scottish billiard association but it was in vain. Better try them rolling on the green.

Fred Lindrum is the champion of Australia, having defeated Charles Messmott.

Puffs is to have its annual 18-2 tournament in a couple of months. They are holding off in hopes of getting entries from America.

The N. A. A. A. P.'s tournament is booked for New York, either in the court of Manz, or in April. It is said there will be one or two entries from Chicago, one from Cleveland and one from Philadelphia, besides the New York Athletic Club entries. March 1 is the date for closing of entries.

George Gray, a youth of only eighteen years, recently made a run in Australia of 548, of which 455 were made off the red ball. Some of the Boston experts might try this red ball plan and see how far they can go.

INTERCITY ICE RACES AT LEWISTON, ME.

AUGUSTA, Me., Feb. 10.—The races between four horses from Augusta and four from Lewiston and Auburn are to come off.

H. F. Libby, secretary of the Lewiston and Auburn Driving Club, and H. H. Lee, secretary of the Kennebec Central Driving Club, are arranging the details satisfactory to both clubs.

The races will take place over the Lewiston course on the afternoon of February 12; and a return race will be held over the Hallowell course on the following Thursday, February 18. These races will pull a good crowd and be worth going to see.

NOW, THEN, MITCHELL!

Sporting Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Billy McCarron would like to have "Al" Mitchell, the lad that is willing to bet $50, deposit the same with the sporting editor of the AMERICAN and Billy will do likewise. The bout can be pulled off March 3rd at Salem.

Three more days are left for sending photographs for entry in the Charles Frohman American Beauty Chorus Contest.

Photographs of all young women desiring to enter the contest will be received at the BOSTON AMERICAN office up to 8 o'clock Saturday night. Photographs of out-of-town candidates which are in this office by Sunday morning will also be received, but after that time positively no more pictures will be considered.

Therefore if you intend availing yourself of Mr. Frohman's generous offer, send in your photograph to-day.

Voting by ballots printed in the BOSTON AMERICAN for the six girls who are to receive positions in the chorus of one of Mr. Frohman's musical comedy companies will begin Monday.

Any girl who wishes to enter the contest and happens to have no photograph available may go to the Otto Sarony Studio at 146 Tremont street and have her photograph taken free of charge to be sent to the AMERICAN.

NEXT Monday morning all photographs received will be given over to the care of a committee headed by Miss Hattie Williams, star of the "Fluffy Ruffles" Company, now playing at the Park Theatre. From the total number, Miss Williams and her associates will select between twenty-five and fifty.

These photographs, identified only by a number, will be printed in instalments in the BOSTON AMERICAN. Using a voting coupon, which will be published on the same time, the readers of the AMERICAN will select six girls whose photographs and physical description above them have fitted for a stage career.

To each of the six pretty girls selected by readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN Mr. Frohman will hand a contract for forty weeks' engagement upon the stage at a salary of $25 a week, making a total outlay of $6,000.

In addition to this Miss Hattie Williams has volunteered to pay the expenses of tuition in singing, dancing and acting for each of the six girls chosen to prepare her better for stage work.

Photographs should be addressed to the Editor of the Charles Frohman AMERICAN Beauty Contest, BOSTON AMERICAN. On the back of each photograph should be written the full name and address of the competitor, and her height and the color of her hair and eyes. None of these details is for publication in case of the applicant's failure.

FINN IMMIGRATION PUZZLES OFFICIALS

Immigration officials are greatly puzzled by the large number of Finns who have been coming over on the Liverpool boats the past two weeks. On the White Star liner Cymric, out of 358 steerage passengers 131 were Finns. On the Ivernia, which arrived last week, there were 131 out of 284 steerage passengers who were Finns. The immigrants offer no explanation. Most of them are going West. The number of steerage passengers arriving in Boston today is by far as large as the entire number who arrived during the month of February, 1908.

"Old" Maids and "Young" Bachelors

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CHAPTER I.

WHEN an unmarried woman reaches the age of forty, she is looked upon as a pronounced old maid, and she is not supposed to enjoy talking to any man who is not related to her.

Her married sister of forty is still considered a young matron, and within bounds of propriety may be as frisky as possible without being termed kittenish.

If the world had its way, the spinster of forty would devote herself solely to good works, her married sister's children and solitaire.

Her family are half inclined to regard with disfavor her love of poetry and the coming clothes. If she betrays the least interest in meeting men, she is utterly condemned.

Now, why in the world should not a wide awake, intelligent woman of forty enjoy talking to an interesting man?

A woman's cheeks may be a little faded at forty, but her heart may still be as young as a girl's. She can thoroughly enjoy a man's society without looking on him as a prospective husband. And she would not marry one man in ten she meets even if she could.

If the term "old maid" had never been invented, there would never have been any old maids.

Woman would simply have grown old gracefully, or awkwardly, as the case be without any idea that at a cer-

if still unmarried, she would upon as belonging to a class

A maid of to-day is of course a vast improvement upon the old maid of a century ago. In one thing, the time limit has stretched horizontally.

Fifty years ago the girl of twenty-eight was considered passe. Her younger sisters looked upon her as quite out of the running, as far as men were concerned. Her style of dress was as old as her mother's, and in many respects she was little more than a household drudge.

Joy Does Not End With Youth

To-day at twenty-eight, a girl is still young and attractive to men.

If she has health and intelligence, the woman of forty is in her prime. If she has lost the exuberance and elasticity of youth she has gained the experience and poise of early middle-age.

She can go to a dance without being left aggrieves for fear of being a wallflower. She can appreciate good looks, good plays and interesting people.

Mind you, I do not deny that youth is the sweetest time in a girl's life, but am merely asserting that all the joy in living does not die with youth.

The modern woman is developing along such splendid lines that, married or single, she is bound to get a great deal out of life if she goes the right way about it.

The happily married woman gets the best, there is in life, but there are thousands of contented old maids who would not change the order of things if they could.

If people would only refrain from calling them "old maids" and looking upon them as old women, the middle-aged unmarried women would stand a better chance of advancement in many ways.

The married woman is not old at forty. Why should the unmarried women be considered so?

To be sure, she is not engaged in raising a family, nor in catering to a man's whims; but she is doing her share of the world's work just the same. She is a busy, useful member of society, and in no way deserving of the time of pitying contempt attached to the title "old maid."

People pity her simply and solely because she, presumably, has not found favor in the eyes of His Majesty, Man.

When Fortune Is on Our Side--By Nell Brinkley

"When the Adored Feet of His Bettina Began to Marathon Toward a Star-Spangled Finish."

ONE wise man made this little saying, that "It is more easy to get a favor from Fortune that to keep it." Maybe he, too, went skating with his best Betty on the pond, and blessed Fortune because she couldn't take care of the runners on her feet and the sleek blue world under them, and railed at it when she began to learn how a little, and, as a clever Billy saith "her adored little nickel-mounted feet didn't run a Marathon with each other in lightning circles quite so often!" For when the adored feet began to Marathon toward a star-spangled finish, he held his wildly flourishing Bettina, with her windmilling arms, up on his own level with two good, reliable arms.

NELL BRINKLEY.

The Power of a Father's Love

Charles S. Mead, an assistant in the Department of Zoology at Columbia University, allowed a pint of blood to be taken from his arm and transfused into the veins of his three-days-old baby. The operation caused the father to lose the use of the left radial artery of his arm, but it saved the baby's life.—News Item.

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

THE blood is the life, but the father cheerfully gave it that his child might life.

It was a very touching picture—that of the little fast-fading human flower, frail as the frailest bit of maiden-hair fern; the anxious mother, the equally anxious father, and the surgeon, preparing to take from the father's bared arm the red drops which, by transfusion, should save the baby's life.

It is one of the pictures upon which we may gaze and feel that the human heart is still human; that the old eternal affections that make man Man are not yet submerged by the cold waters of the mean and the mercenary; that as God at first made us, so we still remain.

The clouds do not destroy the stars. When the clouds pass, the stars are right there in their old places, as bright and beautiful as ever.

So it is with the human heart. There are many things to make us pessimistic, and some to make us cynical; but after the ugly moods have gone by we find that is remain in that down at bottom human nature is, like its Creator, beautiful and divine.

The mute, helpless little one, resting half dead, half alive, upon its mothers arm, may be taken as the symbol of a Power behind which the great cosmic forces are weak indeed—the power of a father's love for his child.

There is meanness in the world—selfishness, cruelty, brutality, the survival of the fittest which reeks not of another's pain, the heartless greed which, like Moloch, mercilessly gives but little thought to the havoc it makes around it—but in many a home there is the true of power indicated by the red drops that saved the baby's life in the mightiest in the world, and is destined to in the end to make all things beautiful.

Advice to the Lovelorn

MUST REGARD PARENTS' WISHES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—

About three months ago I was introduced to a gentleman in my place of business, of whom I have learned to think a great deal. Now, my parents, being very strict, object to me as he is thirty-two, being not quite eighteen. I have every reason to think that he cares for me, as he has asked me quite a few times to go out with him, but I have had to refuse on account of my parents. He has used liquor and also smokes (another objection of my parents, but has promised me not to use either in the future. So far I know he has kept his word. My parents will not even allow me to ask him to spend the evening or take a walk.

READER.

I CAN never advise girls to go contrary to their parents' wishes, though I do not always agree with the objections. I do not think the difference in your ages is very serious matter, and I think in time your parents will give their consent, especially if the man keeps his promise about not drinking. In the meantime, you are very young, and for a few years your parents are the best judges as to what is best for you.

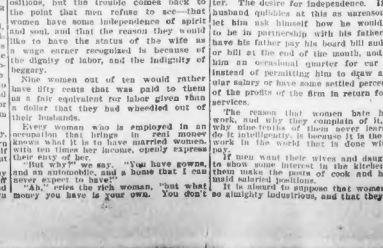
Pay Your Wife Wages; Don't Make Her a Beggar!---By Dorothy Dix



The little transaction, that really costs the husband not a penny, saves the woman's pride

THE article by Madame Pinchon-Landys, secretary of the French Women's Rights Society, advocating the paying of wages to wives, and which was published only a few days ago, has created a lot of the stingy husbands where they live.

At any rate, there has arisen a furious wail of protest from the clubwoods, and one man has even gone so far as to declare that the mere idea of compensating a wife for her work is "indecent."

Yet prithee, gentle sir, why not?

It is held by these close-fisted gentlemen that a wife receives ample remuneration for her services in keeping house, entertaining a man's company, doing his cooking, washing, patching, mending and baby tending, when she gets her "support."

Yet no man is fool enough to suppose that he could go out and hire a female stenographer or bookkeeper, sales woman, or lawyer, or even a cook or a housemaid, on the general proposition that if she would come and work for him that he would give her her board, and what clothes he saw fit to bestow upon her.

The Cold Deal That Wives Get

Any woman to whom such a financial proposition was made would summon the nearest policemen and point out to him that a dangerous lunatic was at large among the streets and ought to be locked up.

It is just that kind of a cold deal, however, that the man who has no heart at all at the idea of paying a wife wages insists upon the woman he marries. He forces her into the position of an economic slave, for slaves are the only people on earth who are not permitted to handle the results of their labor, and who must spend their time begging for some one who simply metes out to them food and clothes.

Of course, men say, and very truly, that the average woman could not earn more than her board and clothes even if she followed some gainful occupation out in the business world.

They will also say that a great many women, who are married to well-off men, are given much finer food and clothes than any woman could ever earn by her own labor. And they will say that the majority of men are fairly generous to their wives.

Women Rebel at Beggary

No one will dispute any of these propositions, but the trouble comes back to the point that men refuse to see—that women have some independence of spirit and soul, and that the reason they would like to have the status of the wife as a wage earner recognized is because of the dignity of labor, and the indignity of beggary.

Nine women out of ten would rather have fifty cents that was paid to them as a fair equivalent for labor given than a dollar that they had wheedled out of their husbands.

Every woman who is employed in an occupation that brings in real money knows what it is to have married women, with ten times her income, openly express their envy of her.

"But why?" we say. "You have gowns and an automobile, and a home that I can never expect to have!"

"Ah," cries the rich woman, "but what money you have is your own. You don't have to ask anybody for every cent, nor to give an account of what you do with it. You are independent."

How Would a Man Like It?

And that is the crux of the whole matter. The desire for independence. If any husband quibbles at this as unreasonable, let him ask himself how he would like to be in partnership with his father, yet have his father pay his board bill and tailor bill at the end of the month, and give him an occasional quarter for car fare, instead of permitting him to draw a regular salary or have some settled percentage of the profits of the firm in return for his services.

The reason that women hate housework, and why they complain of it, and why nine-tenths of them never learn to do it intelligently, is because it is the only work in the world that is done without pay.

If men want their wives and daughters to show some interest in the kitchen, let them make the posts of cook and housemaid salaried positions.

It is absurd to suppose that women are so almighty industrious, and that they love the thought that it is given to their interests.

Of course, in a way, it is a mere swapping of dollars, for the wife will have to use her salary, as every other working woman does, to buy clothes and for the theatre and one expenses of living; but the little commercial transaction that really has not cost the husband a penny has saved the woman pride.

Would Settle Divorce Question

It has taken her out of the ranks of the dependent and made her independent. She is no longer a beggar, but a wage earner. She is not her husband's slave, but his employe.

Whenever the financial question is settled between husband and wife, the divorce question will be mighty near settled. It is the man's fretful impatience, and insulting remarks at being continually nagged for money for all the daily household needs, and the woman's fury at the injustice of a system that forces her to go like a mendicant to her lord for the money that she knows her services have earned ten times over, that is at the bottom of half of the family rows.

And this potent source of discord can be done away with by giving a wife wages, if any laborer in the vineyard is worthy of her hire, it is she.

The Lack of Charity

It Is Often Shown in Unreasonable Prejudice

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

AN American citizen, but a foreigner by birth, a man of education and refinement, and until recently successful in his undertaking, finally encountered misfortune.

Being something of a philosopher, the man had been taking inventory of his mental impressions. He says: "My bad luck has taught me many things. First, how strong is a prejudice against foreigners; second, how absolutely void of any sympathy or Christian feeling are the relations of employer and employe; third, how and why the church is losing its hold upon people.

Then he proceeds to say: "When I was rich I always did my best to help the church, so when I became troubled and distressed I turned toward it as a matter of course for sympathy and encouragement.

Asked Help; Got an Insult

"This was my experience: When I ceased to pay my subscription to the church its manner to me became patronizing; when I took my clergyman to assist me in finding any kind of work he promised to do so; but when I appealed to him for the third time (after eight months of vain effort to re-establish myself) he indifferently offered me $5, which I refused.

"Two letters which I wrote him remained unanswered. What I wanted from this representative of God was not money—it was work or a word of encouragement, I got neither. Instead, I felt myself, if not a suspicious, at least a tiresome character to him.

"My faith does not depend upon clergyman or priest, but I ask you what might be the effect of such conduct upon the minds of simple people to whom the church and the church people are the same thing?

"When they receive so little help and encouragement in the hour of need, and yet see church associations of every kind and denomination rushing into jails and prisons in an effort to convert and comfort the inmates, what can they think save that the church is a cloak for hypocrisy."

The Making of a Pessimist

It is not to be wondered at that my correspondent has become something of a pessimist, and that his idea of religion should divorce itself in a great measure from church associations and organizations.

I knew a good clergyman who endeavored for more than a year to interest some member of his large and wealthy congregation in behalf of a fallen young man who was making a desperate effort to get back to honest paths and become a respectable, self-supporting citizen.

Not one of these avowed followers of the gentle Christ would reach out a hand to the poor, repentant sinner and give him a trial in business. Friends finally came to the rescue of the young man (who is to-day one of the most noble, unselfish and honorable of men), but it was not through his own church that help was given him.

The majority of individuals, as well as organized bodies, seem to love to be valid or a sinner far more than a healthy mind in a healthy body, struggling to live an honorable, industrious life.

Why Not Help Self-Helpers?

We are all more inclined to give money to mendicants and beggars than to spend the same amount on the peddlers who come to our doors with small wares to sell.

We take more time and trouble to send reading matter and condiments to prisons and hospitals than in looking after the mental and physical welfare of the poorly-paid girls and boys battling with the hardships of life in shops, factories and kitchens.

But it is especially reprehensible when a "man of God" fails to cheer, aid and encourage a member of his church, and it is to be hoped the experience of the foreign-born American citizen is not a typical one.

Her Secret of Success

'Determination Will CREATE Ability,' Says America's Foremost Woman Architect

By Angela Morgan.

SEVERAL years ago there was a Brooklyn girl who made up her mind to become a master architect. She had studied drawing in the Corcoran Art Schools at Washington and under a German tutor.

This German tutor it was who put the idea into her head. The youthful draughtswoman had listened, preparing herself for a position in the Treasury Department. Said he:

"Why make a machine of yourself in the government employ? Why not be independent? Take up architecture seriously, as a man does. Make it your life work."

Architecture at this time was a field supposed to belong exclusively to man. The little Brooklyn girl didn't say, "Oh, I couldn't do that! Why, I'm just a woman!" Instead, her blue eyes widened with delight, and she glowed with brilliant purpose.

"I'll do it!" she declared.

And she did. To-day she is the foremost woman architect in the United States. Some of the finest buildings in the country, including the new Hall of Records in New York, bear testimony to her genius.

This remarkable example of feminine achievement in the field of man is Miss May Mellor, a breezy, cheery, frank-eyed little woman with a dimple in her chin—perhaps you'd prefer that I call it a cleft—and a direct, business like manner that reminds one of her thorough responsibility.

She is feminine and yet not feminine, with a sort of contradictory personality that makes the usual interests run at high some time. For example, it is easy to believe her the mistress of her profession, but it is hard to think of her as supervisor of 200 workmen, seeing to labor and personally directing the construction of buildings just as a man would do.

But this is exactly what Miss Kellogg does, every day of her life. It is a man's job, and she revels in it. Moreover, she takes a supreme delight in it, chiefly because she loves to give herself personally to every part of her profession, no matter what the inconvenience.

"Is that the keynote of your success—giving yourself wholly to your work?" I asked this business-like woman.

Miss Kellogg squared her shoulders and considered the question in her business-like way.

"I believe it is," she said, "very largely. But the real secret of success, in my opinion, is determination."

"How about determination without ability?" I asked.

Her answer was lightning swift: "Oh, but determination creates ability."

"You believe that?"

"I most certainly do. Given the right sort of determination, there is practically nothing one cannot achieve. It is folly to talk of special gifts and talents. Talent comes through use. It is actually created by the will to succeed."

"Then you must have determined, definitely, to make a success of architecture?"

"I did. And I am certain that the positive attitude of mind resulting from that act was necessary before I could develop the talent for it. Determination will do anything, everything for human beings."

"Determination, then, is the prime factor."

"One little word of four letters explains it—w-o-r-k. During the period of my experience I worked steadily from fifteen to eighteen hours a day. Oh, I admit it meant sacrifice, but sacrifice is the penalty everyone must pay for success. I was willing to sacrifice myself, my friends, my pleasures, my recreation—everything was given up to work."

Then Miss Kellogg told me from the beginning about her climb up the ladder to her present success.

"At first I thought I wanted to become a doctor," she said; "I studied medicine in Washington. My father, however, persuaded me to change my mind and pursue drawing. I studied two years at the Corcoran Art Schools, two years under Boy German tutor, then went to Pratt Institute for two years.

"After that I took a position with one of the most prominent architects in New York. Then I went abroad to study. In Paris I accomplished the thing which I really consider the achievement of my life. I succeeded in making the diploma of the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris open their doors to women, despite their rule to admit only men students.

"I believe that the woman who expects to accomplish anything must determine that, if necessary, she will insist upon being made an exception to established rules. She herself must make precedent.

"If women wait for the rules to be made for them, they will wait forever. The individual woman must herself break down the barriers of custom. She must make herself come to be aggressive when occasion requires.

"That is another essential to success?"

"It is, but it must be used with discretion in order to be aggressive."

After her two years in Paris, Miss Kellogg returned to the New York firm that had formerly employed her services. Then went to work with John R. Thomas, distinguished architect, on the new building that also did for the Hall of Records.

And when she had achieved her life's ambition, she talks of retiring in the not far distant future and taking some of the recreation of which she has deprived herself so long.

The President's Significant Activity

He Is Best Qualified to Judge the Seriousness of the Japanese Situation

The extraordinary activity of the President in the California-Japanese matter is significant.

The President is the head of the government and the commander-in-chief of the army and navy.

He has had long and intimate experience with the Japanese since the Peace of Portsmouth, through the ugly California disagreement of last year down to the present unpleasant controversy over identical issues.

He has complete access to all the files of the State Department.

He knows just what Japan officially has hinted, declared or threatened.

He knows exactly how far Japan has presumed upon our national unpreparedness to bully our diplomacy and coerce our State Department.

He knows just about what Japan thinks of our helpless condition on our western coasts, and in our western seas and islands.

And he understands just how nearly the Japanese estimate is correct.

He is also perfectly acquainted with the MOTIVES—commercial, political and sentimental—which might move Japan to war with the United States.

And with this information at his finger tips he is stirring himself to compose the differences between Japan and our Western States, with an eagerness, a vigor and masterful insistence GREATER than he has exhibited IN ANY OTHER OF THE GREAT QUESTIONS of his two administrations.

Which means, among other things:

That what the BOSTON AMERICAN has thought and said for these twelve months past touching the danger of our western possessions, and the necessity for a strong navy and improved defences, is just what this administration and this government think to-day.

That the BOSTON AMERICAN, without being a jingo, has been the advocate and champion of that policy which is officially the most American, because it is the most prudent and most preservative of peace.

And that the need is more urgent now than ever before for the building of battleships, for the strengthening of coast defences and for the permanent establishment of peace.

To attain these things we will be met, as always, by that same smug and complacent conservatism which recognizes no danger UNTIL IT IS UPON US, and protests action until it is TOO LATE to be effective.

It is the identical spirit which hindered the discovery of America by Columbus and the development of the telescope by Galileo.

One Senator Can Keep Out Two States

Two hundred and forty-two Representatives in the lower house of Congress have put themselves on record for the immediate separate Statehood of Arizona and New Mexico.

Next Monday the House will pass the bill.

No attempt will be made under its rules to keep these two new States from the flag.

The majority in the House is overwhelming.

The House is all right in this urgent matter.

But such are the rules of the Senate that the objection of one Senator to the bill going on the calendar will put off action until the next session of Congress.

One Senator can keep two Territories from Statehood—two States out of the Union!

It seems almost impossible, but such is the fact!

No wonder certain Senators object to direct primaries and to the election of members of the most august legislative body in the world by the people.

A direct representative of the people would hardly avail himself of the personal privilege of denying Statehood rights to hundreds of thousands of Americans.

No State of the United States demands or wants Arizona and New Mexico kept out of the Union.

BUT SOME SENATOR MAY ASSERT HIS PERSONAL PREROGATIVE TO DO SO.

It will be a spectacle—if it comes to pass—comporting only with idea of buying togas and owning the prerogatives that go with them.

The man wearing the toga can do some things no other human being can do.

This extraordinary thing, for instance.

And it is easy to see why certain proprietors of togas regard increased membership in the Senate as injurious to their PRIVATE OWNERSHIP of Senatorial privilege.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

ONE IDEA OF WOMAN'S RIGHTS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have been following your editorials on woman and her rights for some time, and while I am in favor of giving her all the rights to which she has a right, I do not believe she was meant to be the factor that you assert she should be in human affairs. I claim that man is the supreme being of creation and that woman is his equal in all things except in supremacy and domination; and that to man belongs the settling of the fate of nations, of creatures, the control of the elements and the right to say how far woman shall enter into his struggle with Maximum. What her influence shall be upon all things no man shall say, for it remains with woman to demonstrate from within domestically the proper conduct of affairs, when they have cut loose from the maternal apron-string and when the bond is broken, of her influence and instruction and love has failed of its purpose, then she can never, by hurling herself into the maelstrom of male calculation, intrigue and catastrophe, regenerate or set aright the unpedestaled towers of righteousness and brotherhood's vortex of man and man.

WANTS REFERENDUM

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

By all means give us the referendum. Let the people decide for themselves. Freedom from State control is what we, the citizens of Boston, want—to rule and govern ourselves free from too much dictation from those who believe the people of Boston are not capable of governing themselves. The new charter as submitted by the Finance Commission is an insult to our intelligence.

I am glad indeed to note that the BOSTON AMERICAN has taken up the fight for fair play and a government for, of and by the people.

We cannot be true to Lincoln's ideal if we are false to his principles.

WANTS COVERS ON ASH BARRELS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Permit me through the columns of your paper to call the attention of the public to a much needed reform in the collection of ashes and refuse. It is a great menace to the public health, when ash cans and barrels of kitchen refuse are set out on the sidewalk across for three days a week and uncovered for hours before the collection wagon arrives around. As odor arises from these barrels and is carried all over the street, and if a light gust of wind happens to be blowing there is the danger of filling your lungs with the particles of dust which are blown out of the barrels to pollute the air. Germs of disease are lurking in these barrels, and the passerby gets them on his lungs. As a safeguard against disease we should call on the Boston Board of Health to make all house owners use covers on cans and barrels which are set out on the sidewalk.

THE WAR CRAZE.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

You deserve the thanks of every lover of peace for your protests against war and war talk. There is one aspect of this craze, however, which needs more careful investigation and which I am happy to say is beginning to arouse the attention of many, both abroad and at home; and that is, the connection between the horders and screamers for [illegible] such as Hobson, and the big concern[illegible] who by building warships and forging [illegible] profit from this

Do Autos Make Socialists?

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

(Written for the Boston American)

Americans are a long-suffering race or they would not tolerate the imposition put upon them by automobiles.

It does not stand to reason that in a democratic country 95 per cent. of the population should be tyrannized over and run to the ground by the other 5 per cent.

It is one of the prevalent infirmities of our nature that the possession of power instinctively develops into the abuse of power. It is so in the oil business, the grain business, the railroad business and the business of running an automobile.

This disposition is a part of almost every one's outfit. But only a small percentage of us are so situated as to be able to indulge it; and in this matter as in so many others virtue consists of not having an opportunity to be vicious.

Ignore All Rights

But that does not change facts at all, and what we have to consider is that pedestrians have no rights that autoists feel themselves bound to respect, notwithstanding that the streets, and in particular the street crossings, belong to the people on foot exactly as much as they do to people on wheels.

While there are certainly autoists that respect themselves and therefore respect the rights of other people, yet the fact in general in regard to auto-drivers is that for the sake of securing to themselves right of way they so paralyze the pedestrian element of the community into a condition of abject fear—old men and young, patriarchs and children—that there is nothing left the to do but to run to cover.

The peril is bad, the smell is bad, but the thing that especially touches that quivering spot where a man keeps his unredeemerary is the air of contemptuous lordliness and self-complacent insolence with which the outrage is committed. Even Constantinople, so it is reported, manages these matters with more of consideration and forbids the passage of autos in the streets, "as they are a menace to foot-passengers, a nuisance to cab drivers and a distraction to mules."

In a discussion in which members of the House of Lords and also of the House of Commons (in the English Parliament) engaged in July of last year, some important points were made in regard to the way in which the rights of the public are trenched upon by autos.

There is a dignity in the resentments of an Englishman that is not always evidenced by the more effervescent American. This discussion was the more significant as it occurred in the closing days of the session when members are not supposed to care to debate matters that are not considered by them to be of special moment.

A thought to which emphasis was given in both Houses was that so far as speed and tooting of horns were concerned motor cars should be treated as any other vehicles. The position was taken that speed limit should be withdrawn and motorists held responsible for accidents like the drivers of ordinary carriages and clubs.

It was claimed that by horn-blowing and thus driving foot-passengers and common vehicles off the streets preferential privileges were being granted to motorists and that thus the great majority were made to suffer in the interests of a noisy, blatant, arrogant minority.

Denounces Tyranny

The condition thus described is one wherein people with money are making use of it in a way to curtail the rights of those who haven't it.

We have no reason for making war upon those who have wealth provided only that wealth is not used in a way that cuts into our prerogatives.

We are not justified in objecting to autos, nor even to the passing through our streets of juggernauts and "Trojan Horses," provided the rest of us, who are not rich enough to own that style of vehicle, are not incommoded thereby.

It is pure affectation to brag of our democratic principles of government when As large money deprives B's small money of a part of its working value.

I own as big a share of Commonwealth avenue as any millionaire, and it is oppression, in our country at any rate, for a million dollars to reduce, by no matter how small a per cent, the power of enjoyableness properly belonging to a hundred dollars.

Any dimount so produced requires to be charged up to tyranny. Any man with spirit cannot be meaningly tooted off the street crossing without there being in his soul the beginings of an experience which, sufficiently developed, would make of him a socialist.

The only way to preserve our prerogative is to let ourselves be heard from when those prerogatives are violated.
